Poll Gives 3 New England States to Hoover

New York for Smith?
Georgia for Hoover?
$25,000,000 for Rosenwald
This IS "An Empire"

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

NEW YORK STATE'S labor union convention indorses Governor Smith for President. many well known Republicans in union labor ranks leaving their party. This follows a refusal of the National Union labor body to take sides in the campaign.

Governor Smith's friends are forcing the fight in New York State, convinced that if Republicans lose in New York they will lose in the nation.

From Georgia, on the other hand, comes M. O. Dunning, said to know politics better than Webster knew spelling. At Montauk, L. I., yesterday Mr. Dunning told Carl Fisher, king of Miami, Mr. Coffin, boss of Hudson and Essex, and this writer, that Herbert Hoover would surely carry Georgia.

He complained that Republican leaders do not see their opportunities in the south, "where" he said, "several states are offered to them on a silver platter."

Results in this campaign will surprise those most deeply interested. Ask Col. Knight, of Tampa.

It pays to stick to your convictions, friends and business.

In 1921 things looked dark for Sears, Roebuck, shrinkage in after the war inventory values threatened to stop preferred dividends. That would have meant nothing to Rosenwald, he could afford to wait.

But friends had bought the stock on his advice, so Mr. Rosenwald put $16,000,000 cash into the company and make it a present of 50,000 shares of its own stock, only reserving the right to buy the stock back at $100 a share.

All went well, the company bought and retired all of its preferred stock out of profits. Rosenwald bought his 50,000 shares for $5,000,000 and made $25,000,000 cash profit.

Mr. Rosenwald, you will notice, never sells anything short, in this country. He knows that prosperity is only beginning.

Mr. Wall Street bear, write that on your cuff.

Some goose says that Mr. Firestone, planting rubber trees in Liberia on a gigantic scale, is "guilty of imperialism, and that Herbert Hoover, as secretary of commerce, had a share in that dreadful enterprise.

First, Secretary Kellogg shows that Hoover had nothing to do with the Firestone enterprise.

Second, that's a pity. For Hoover could have helped, and Firestone planting rubber trees, to fight off the British monopoly first denounced by Herbert

Poison Food Kills 2 in Dorchester

2 CHILDREN ARE DEAD, 2 DYING, PARENTS ILL IN 'ARSENIC MYSTERY'

Two Dorchester children are dead, two are dying at Boston City Hospital and their parents are seriously ill at the same institution from an intestinal disorder, caused by arsenic or some other poison in green vegetables or beans the family may have eaten.

This is the conclusion of Dr. William H. Waters, who has ordered a further examination of the intestines of the dead children.

The dead:
Eugene Hunt, four.
Arthur Hunt, Jr., five.
The dying:
Robert Hunt, one year.
Doughlass Hunt, three.

The seriously ill:
Arthur Hunt and his wife, Mildred, the parents.

The entire family of seven, including the four children, was stricken with the disease.

3 N. E. STATES CALLED DOUBTFUL BY EXPERT

By CHARLES S. WHEELER
Noted Political Analyst

Chicago, Sept. 1—The Boston Evening American, which is conducting the straw vote for the Hearst publications in the New England States, sends word that the northern half of the territory made famous by Mrs. Hemans' poem—"Stern and rock-bound" coast, etc.—is safely fenced in by the Hoover generals.

But the southern half, in the territory of the "Tea Party" patriots and throughout the Nutmeg Commonwealth and "Little Rhody," it is a battle royal.

The 14 electoral votes of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont are all but conceded to Hoover by the Democratic leaders of these sections. And the poll supports their decision.

Rhode Island's five electoral votes are in doubt at this writing, owing to the pronounced wet sentiment

WEST END SHOOTING VICTIM DISAPPEARS

A mysterious Bowdoin sq. shooting, believed to have been a gang murder, sent Boston police into the underworld resorts of the West End today.

The shooting took place between 7 and 7:30 o'clock last night and two versions of it were reported to the Joy st. station.

The first was that several shots were fired at a man near the site of the old Revere House, that a car from which the shots were fired stopped and that the victim, who had fallen, apparently dead, was drawn into the auto which then drove away.

The second story was that the

Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy, Wabut, Newton Highlands, and a 3-year-old son were stricken. The child was moved to the hospital, where six of his brothers and sisters lie paralyzed. The parents, less seriously affected, were allowed to remain at home.

Weather Man Fears Rain Will Mar Labor Day

A disagreeable outlook was injected into the holiday program for New Englanders today when the weather man reluctantly announced the possibility of rain on Labor Day.

While he assured good weather up to Sunday night, and slightly higher temperature tomorrow, he pointed out that storms on the Gulf coast and in Manitoba might converge on this section of the country Monday.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight and Sunday; slightly warmer Sunday; gentle variable winds.

Cloudiness and probable showers were predicted for southern New England for tomorrow, while southern New England will have practically the same weather as Boston and vicinity.

EDSEL FORD FLEES FIRE

Detroit, Sept. 1 (AP)—Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, narrowly escaped injury when his speedboat Woodfish in which he had driven to Gaukers Point on Lake St. Clair suddenly burst into flames.

The blaze developed apparently from backfire just as Ford stepped from it into a rowboat to go ashore at Buckler's Point, near where he is constructing a new home.

MILLIONS SAVED FOR AUTOISTS; MONK NEAR COLLAPSE, IS REPORT

Insurance Commissioner Wesley E. Monk resigned today instead of announcing new compulsory automobile insurance rates for 1929, as he was scheduled to do.

As a result the present rates continue in force for next year, according to Asst.-Atty.-Gen. Roger Clapp.

This was the last day for altering the old rates and Monk had intended to promulgate big increases. Through his dramatic resignation, Massachusetts car owners will save millions of dollars in the aggregate.

Monk is on the verge of nervous prostration, according to his first assistant and in the opinion of those who saw him as he left the State House.

"Thank God I'm out of that office and out of the public eye," he said as he rode down in the elevator.

His quitting was a bombshell. Nothing was less expected.

On him the law placed the burden and responsibility of determining the rates. He had made his decision to increase them and had withstood the fire of thousands of citizens and officials from the Governor down.

He had declared emphatically he would not "quit the firing line under fire," and his announcement officially promulgating the increases was due at 10 o'clock today.

MONK RESIGNS HIS OFFICE; OLD INSURANCE RATES STAND

That he was considerably wrought up was apparent during the forenoon hours which he spent largely in conference in his private office with his personal attorney, Myron Pierce, and others.

At two minutes of 11 he stepped into his outer office and instead of handing duplicates of the new rates to waiting newspapermen, he tersely said:

"You'll have to get your information at the Governor's office."

This indicated that something had changed his plans, but around the State House it was thought he had decided to agree with the Governor and others and let the old rates stand.

GOVERNOR AWAY.

When Governor Fuller's secretary, a few minutes later, announced that he had received Monk's written resignation, there was a dramatic scene. Reporters raced to telephones to spread the news that the opposition of car owners and their champions in public office, against the new rates, was successful.

Herman MacDonald, the Governor's secretary, said he was unable to get in touch with the Governor to advise him of the resignation.

"Gov. Fuller waited until 10 o'clock at his summer home at Rye Beach, waiting for Commissioner Monk's announcement of rates, and then he had to leave for an important engagement, and he did not say where he was going," said MacDonald.

"I do not believe he would act on the resignation before Tuesday, anyway."

WILL NEVER RETURN

"How does Monk's resignation affect the rates?" he was asked.

"I suppose the present rates stand," replied MacDonald.

At the insurance department office reporters found Monk just leaving with Atty. Pierce. He carried a bulging brief case and had evidently cleaned out his desk of personal belongings. He told Arthur K. Lindell, veteran first assistant, that he would never return to his office.

"I am a private citizen now. I shall answer no questions," said Monk to newspapermen, continuing to walk toward the elevator.

Told that the public had a right to know from some official source whether or not the present rates remained in effect, he said:

"I am no longer commissioner. You'll have to see the deputy commissioner."

Atty. Pierce said his client was tired and was absolutely unable to talk things over.

"NOT FORCED OUT."

When First Deputy Commissioner Lingell was approached he referred his questioners to the attorney-general's office, but later he said definitely that before resigning Monk had not promulgated any new rates.

"Mr. Monk left, saying, 'I am never coming back,'" said Lingell. "Personally, I hope he will change his mind. He is on the verge of nervous prostration. His resignation was absolutely voluntary and he told me that everybody urged him not to resign. He was not forced out."

The first definite statement that the 1928 rates remain in force came from Asst. Atty.-Gen. Roger Clapp. He explained that while this was the last day for announcing a new 1929 rate schedule, the law did not require any announcement at all if the existing tables were to continue.

Monk's resignation, he added, left the state temporarily without an insurance commissioner and therefore there could be no announcement at all with regard to the rates.

MONK WAS UNDECIDED

"The old rates will stand," said Clapp. He then read the amended general laws in support of his interpretation of the situation.

"The insurance companies have no appeal to the courts under the law in the situation where the present rates carry on for another year," said Clapp.

"They have nothing to appeal from. I take it that the time for the insurance companies to make any appeal was 20 days from the day on which the last rates were established." (That date was September 1, 1927.)

The fact that Monk did not know what he was going to do until just before he dispatched his letter of resignation to the Governor's office was shown in his activities during the forenoon and his remarks to newspapermen.

Besides conferring with Atty. Pierce, he talked at great length privately with Alexander Holmes, deputy tax commissioner, and Harold J. Taylor, insurance department legal counsel.

Shortly after 10 o'clock he was asked when he would announce the new rates. He replied: "In half or three-quarters of an hour."

Then when, a little later, he told reporters to go to the Governor's office, he was asked why he did not tell them that earlier. His answer was, "I couldn't."

At a late hour yesterday he was still emphatically asserting that he would stand by his guns and promulgate the rate boost that he thought the accident record and the figures established by the insurance companies justified. But as the evening wore on he wavered and appeared worried over the problem.

John Halts His Own Funeral; 'Death' Is All News to Him

New York, Sept. 1 (AP)—John Reynolds met a friend out the street and arrangements for his funera were called off. It was this way.

John disappeared a month ago and when listed as a fatality in the subway wreck last week a friend identified a body as that of the missing man. Mrs. Reynolds, while a bit skeptical, accepted the body as her husband's and made ready for the funeral.

But Miss Helen Reynolds, a niece was more dubious and so told Allen Baird, who knew her uncle.

Baird met Reynolds in Harlem.

"You are supposed to be dead and your funeral is scheduled for this afternoon," Baird told the astounded Reynolds.

Reynolds as soon communicated with his family and the funeral was cancelled.

KAROLYI LANDS IN U. S. AND IS 'SURPRISED'

New York, Sept. 1 (INS)—Count Michael Karolyi, first President of Hungary, arrived in New York today and much to his amazement was permitted to land.

The noted liberal was barred with his wife from the United States three years ago by the Department of State, supposedly because of his alleged Socialistic and Communistic views.

"This certainly is a surprise to me," Karolyi said. "I expected to be handcuffed and tied to the Statue of Liberty until the ship sailed again."

He arrived on the liner Cristobel Colon after spending three months in Mexico. He is en route to Spain, with the vessel scheduled to sail Monday or Tuesday.

Karolyi has been a bitter foe of Premier Horthy, virtual dictator of Hungary.

Word went out to Karolyi's friends in New York to assemble at Wall and South sts. where he would deliver an address.

A fast plane was engaged for Karolyi at Curtiss field, and he intended to fly to Washington to ask thestate department to grant him a permanent visa so he may enter the United States at any time.

STOCKS SOAR IN BIGGEST RUSH SINCE SPRING

New York, Sept. 1 (AP)—The stock market today displayed the greatest activity of a half-day's session since last spring. Demonstrations reminiscent of that period of bull rampages lifted scores of issues to new high levels, among them airplane, independent motor, industrial specialties and a few oil and railroad stocks.

Trading was so fast that the ticker ran behind the market most of the morning and was 20 minutes late in recording the final quotation. Total sales were 2,134,300 shares.

A feature of the session was trading in huge blocks, 22,000 shares of Studebaker changing hands as an opening transaction. Sale of a block of more than 24,000 shares of Nash sent that issue up 16 a share.

Prominent in the advance were Case Threshing Machine, A. M. Byers, Curtiss Aero, Radio, Electric Auto-Lite, St. Louis, Southwestern, Erie and St. Paul preferred.

A wave of pre-holiday profit-taking swept through the market in the final hour, but offerings generally were well absorbed.

Los Angeles, Sept. 1 (INS—Texas Guinan, the "big whoopee girl from the East," was a mite disgruntled today as she ruminated the cause and effect of the party planned in her honor here—a party which became a "dud" when the breakfast club "took a run-out powder."

The New York night club hostess said:

"Some people are so narrow-minded their ears overlap.

"Every time I go some place," mourned Miss Guinan, "I get into trouble or get somebody else into trouble. What is it that I have done this time? If anybody's feelings are hurt, it's just too bad."

YOUNG WAR VET HELD IN FRAUD

After months of searching, a young man who posed as a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps, and who is accused of stealing checks from dimbied war veterans and others, was being held by the police of the Back Bay station today.

The prisoner, who is 28 years old, good looking and well set up, is himself a veteran, having served in the navy during the war, and he is said to have confessed to having obtained about $500 from stolen checks.

He was run down by Special Officer Henry Muldoon of division 16 and Agents Lester H. Stanley and E. K. Grant of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. He is held as a suspicious person, but the police charges will be entered against him later.

Last June, wearing a second lieutenant's uniform of the Marine Corps, the young man appeared at the office of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., 125 Milk st., and asked them to cash a check for $425. Officials, becoming suspicious, telephoned the New York bank on which the check was drawn and found it was worthless.

The spurious officer disappeared, but, according to the police, has since confessed he took a check for $6, drawn to a man named Corcoran, living at 73 Audubon rd. and raised it.

The telephone officials heard no more from the would-be marine officer until early this month when one of their employes, J. J. Fitzgerald of 95 Audubon rd., notified them that two of his paychecks were missing. Investigation revealed that these checks had been cashed by a man wearing a marine officer's uniform and the hunt was on. A decoy check was placed in Fitzgerald's box, and the pseudo officer was trailed to a room on Geneva ave., where he was taken into custody, after he had abstracted the check.

LIBERAL CLUB REVELS BARED BY NEIGHBORS

Tales of Bacchanalian revels, orgies of dancers and gin baths for the tired feet of the performers were told today by neighbors whose complaint resulted in closing the Harvard Liberal Club at 68 Winthrop st., Cambridge.

A window in the "library" of the club was the moving picture screen on which the antics of the club inmates were flashed while an amazed neighborhood gasped.

Two fair young damsels, according to the complaint, have been practically living at the club during the summer and finally Charles Apted, head of the "Harvard Vigilants," decided the time had come to tell the Liberals there was such a thing as too much "liberality."

That, according to Harvard authorities today, is the story of the closing of the Liberal Club, and not as the club members say any grudge against the "liberal" principles and speakers entertained by the club.

CLUB WILL REOPEN

In fact, the authorities go so far as to say the regular winter residents of the club will in no way be embarassed by the summer action of closing the place. The authorities blame the group of young men who have been making their quarters at the club during the college vacation.

One woman who complained to Apted said today that in the so-called "library" which was fitted up as a bedroom she had seen youths with their girl companions indulging in old Grecian dances while an admiring audience in the shape of other boys looked on.

When the dancers became tired, she said, the boys bathed the girls' feet with the contents of gin bottles.

GIRL SMUGGLED OUT

Last Wednesday night when Apted visited the club he was met at the door of one room, against the "library," by protests from within. He was refused admittance, but waited downstairs until the inmates of the room prepared to depart. A young woman was smuggled out. He made a report to the Harvard authorities and they losing of the club was ordered.

The complaining neighbors said today that never before had they been troubled by such revels and affairs as have gone on in the club this summer.

"And the worst of it was," said one woman today "was that they didn't care who saw them. They never pulled down the shades on that window and every time they had a 'dance' they just played about unclothed as though they were miles away from anyone."

BAR 'PEACHES' IN WALTHAM

"Peaches" Browning cannot appear at Embassy Theater, Waltham, where she is booked for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Mayor Henry F. Beal decreed today.

Mayor Beal said he took this action on account of "the general sentiment" he had heard expressed around the city and not because of a protest from any organization.

Previously the mayor declared that, while he did not personally care for that kind of entertainment, he did not think he would bar the buxom girl whose separation suit against "Daddy" Browning, wealthy New Yorker, caused such a sensation.

Bowers suffered an attack of acute appendicitis while week-ending at Nantasket Beach. He was thought to be recovering after the operation when poisoning developed.

Boy, 10, in 9 Burglaries

A 10-year-old boy arrested in Lynn today confessed nine breaks and told police he bought harmonicas, candy and ice cream with money he stole. He will be in juvenile court Wednesday.

DANCERS REACH HUB, BEATEN BY DETOURS

Led by four boys, tooting on harmonicas, Hal Crosby, Back Bay dancing instructor, and Honey Bouteiler of Dorchester ave., Dorchester, danced limpingly into the arcadia at police headquarters at 12:53 today, having completed a bunion Marathon from Providence in 13 hours, 12 minutes.

Miss Bouteiler collapsed getting into an automobile immediately after the finish, and only copious applications of water on Crosby's bare head saved him from a like plight.

The Back Bay dancer had failed by 1 hour and 13 minutes in equaling the record credited to Louis Lerner, who engaged in a Marathon dance from Providence to Boston against Harry Wiseman August 2.

Crosby started from Providence last night confident he would better Lerner's time, but he was defeated by two detours, one outside of Norwood and the other on the outskirts of Dedham, and also by lack of stamina.

At the start he was inspired by music of a three-piece orchestra, but the ban was placed on the jazz by Pawtucket police and the musicians remained mute from there on.

However, in Center st., Jamaica Plain, four boys joined the procession, each manipulating a harmonica, and they spurred the tired dancers on.

With Margaret O'Brien of Southampton st., South End, as a partner, Crosby hit Norwood at 8:30, going strong and dancing every foot of the way.

His other dancing partners were Sallie Litson of Blue Hill ave., who quit at 2 a. m., as she had to work today, and Mary Crosby, his sister of Washburn st., South Boston.

The new Ashmont extension of the Elevated lines from Field's Corner opened at 5 o'clock today with two women among the first passengers to pass through the turnstiles.

Close on the heels of a laboring man whose name was not obtained, Mrs. Sarah S. Ellgner and Mrs. Anna B. Wright, both of 1892 Dorchester ave., entered the new Ashmont station at the opening hour and boarded the first train which left at 5:05.

The two women, who live within a short distance of Peabody sq., in which the new station is located, made plans when the construction work started to be the first patrons of the Ashmont station. In accordance with this plan they arose at 4:30 and were at the station at 4:50, but a man was ahead of them and went through the turnstile first.

Miss Ellgner and Mrs. Wright rode to Harvard sq. and return, 54 minutes being consumed from the time they entered the Ashmont station until they reached Peabody sq. on the return trip.

There are two stations on the extension, Shawmut and Ashmont, the latter being the more important as it is the terminal. Supt. John Banks, former assistant superintendent at Fields Corner, is in charge, having been promoted to the new position.

The bus entrance to the Ashmont station was not opened, as it will be necessary to wait for a permit from the City Council, which meets the first of next week.

The extension runs from Field's Corner to Ashmont in practically a straight line. The tunnel is well lighted and ventilated and with no curves will permit trains to make good time with safety.

KNIFE SAVES BABY WHEN CHIP PIERCES PALATE

A tiny piece of wood he swallowed while playing today nearly cost the life of Donald Murray, 22-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Judson F. Murray, Winthrop ave., Revere. The child's mother took him to Dr. Hyman Friedman, Revere city physician, who discovered the piece of wood lodged in his palate.

Dr. Friedman gave the child temporary relief while he was being rushed to the Massachusetts General Hospital in the Revere police ambulance. An emergency operation was performed and his life saved.

HUB ROOSEVELT CLUB BACKS CANDIDATE HAIGIS

The Roosevelt Club, Inc., Boston, by vote of its central committee has indorsed the candidacy of John W. Haigis of Greenfield for the G. O. P. nomination for state treasurer.

MRS. ARTHUR G. APPELL

She was Esther "Patsy" Mason of Malden, and announcement has just been made of her sudden marriage to the stage manager of her company, "Good News."

GUIDE FOR STUDENTS

Rev. John Richard Cheney, Ph. D., of the Village Church, Dorchester, and his family, Mrs. Hazel George Cheney, Richard George Cheney, 3, and Betty Lee Cheney, 1. The pastor has accepted a call to Wesleyan University, where he will be spiritual guide to the undergraduate body.

When Rev. John Richard Cheney, Ph.D., assumes the spiritual guidance of Wesleyan University undergraduates, students may feel they are in the hands of one who thoroughly understands them.

Dr. Cheney, who resides on Eliot st., Milton, looks little more than an undergraduate himself.

"I am looking forward to my new appointment with great zest," he stated.

Maldenites remember him as one of the best infielders that ever represented Malden High school on the diamond. He has made good as pastor of the Village Church in Dorchester.

Throughout high school and college his interests were of the widest, from football, baseball, and other sports to debating, singing in the glee clubs, and holding executive position in school organizations.

Dr. Cheney's chief love in life is his wife and two pretty children, now vacationing in Ohio, from whom he awaits with keen pleasure letters telling how they are getting along.

BAR HARBOR IS SOCIETY'S MECCA

Miss Isabel Gurnee Thorndike and Z. Bennett Phelps Exchange Vows Before Altar of St. Saviour's Church in Smart Maine Summer Resort Today

GOLDENROD SUMMERS SUNNILY ON MAINE HILLSIDES AS SEPTEMBER ARRIVES WITH ITS FIRST DAY and its first bride. Today the social spotlight flickered over Miss Isabel Gurnee Thorndike, satin robed and tulle swathed, as she became the bride of Z. Bennett Phelps in far away Bar Harbor. Smart society in that exclusive Maine town on its rockbound heights called its very smartest, shiniest motors and drove to St. Saviour's for the marriage rites and then to "Ambleside" for the al fresco reception. The bride's parents are the Harry Hill Thorndikes. And Mrs. Thorndike was born a Gurnee of New York, so it follows that the family has been for many a year closely identified with the Newport of the Maine coast.

THE BRIDE SHOPPED IN PARIS LAST SPRING FOR HER wedding gown, so the satin and tulle with which she was today bedecked in traditional splendor have grace and sophistication, the true Parisian imprint. Two marvelously beautiful and priceless Brussels lace veils entirely covered the slender court train and softly adorned the eleventh bride of the family to wear these heirlooms. Long sleeves and an uneven hem, with a draped neckline, was the modernistic touches to a wedding gown of pictorial simplicity. The bride's bouquet was of white gardenias, fragile and fragant, and her tulle veil was bound with narcissus and orange blossoms.

BRIDE ATTENDANTS' FROCKS WERE DELICATELY PASTEL, tinted in lavender and shell pink chiffons. Miss Gladys Winifred Thorndike, sister of the bride, was honor maid and wore a lavender chiffon and a floppy hat of felt and carried pick sweet peas. Four bridesmaids in shell pink chiffon frocks and wide hats, with bouquets of lavender sweet peas, carried out the pastel motif. Miss Katharine Cunningham Gray and Miss Louise Thayer were two Boston girls in the slow moving processional. The Countess Alexandrine von Bernstorff of New York and Newport and Miss Louise Hunt of Chicago and Bar Harbor were the other two of the quartete of bridesmaids.

SAINT SAVIOUR'S WAS FRAGRANT WITH QUANTITIES OF white bridal wreath and gladioli on their long stalks, and of course Maine's own evergreens figured in the ceremonial decoration. At "Ambleside" clematis and palms surrounded the wedding party as felicitations were received. The bride is one of Boston's important younger set, the feminine portion of the Upper Crust that has Vincent Club and Junior League membership and so moves within the social holy of holies as Boston decrees it. The bridegroom is junior in the Z. Bennett Phelps family and hails from New York. He adds another inter-city alliance to the long list that links out-of-town men and Boston girls.

NAHANT'S DANCING SET, IT APPEARS, HAS NO GREAT liking for the Cinderella hour, when of a Saturday evening promptly with the chiming of midnight the saxophone is tucked away in its leather case, the traps become mute and syncopation wails its final note. To overcome this shortening of terpsichorean festivities Nahant's colony vitally concerned with Nahant Club doings stages its night buffet dinner dance on Friday, and all is well. Last evening practically the entire colony turned out at the little clubhouse about which colony affairs center.

MRS. ALFRED GARDNER was hostess for by far the largest group, numbering three score. Just the evening before that, Thursday, William Bainbridge Frothingham, bonedict-elect, gave his final entertainment marking bachelorhood's ending. More femininity counts not at all on such occasions, guests being confined strictly to the sterner sex. Mr. Frothingham's intimate coterie included ushers and best man and a few other choice souls to the number of thirty. Nahant has taken kindliest interest in the alliance of Mr. Frothingham and Miss Harriet Amory Bangs, set for September 15.

PATERS AND MATERS OF the young people have been neighbors in the Nahant summer colony, so the romance had its beginnings back in carefree childhood days. The Theodore Frothinghams and the Francis Bangs family are Bostonians and Nahanters of many seasons' standing. The little Nahant church is an edifice lacking spaciousness for many guests and imposing wedding processionals. Nevertheless, it is staunchly enshrined in Nahant hearts. Hence its selection as the scene of every important wedding in Nahant marks take the altar path. Miss Bangs and Mr. Frothingham say marriage vows there.

IT TAKES NO SOOTHSAYER TO PREDICT AN INSTANTANEOUS, enormous success for Miss Phyllis Ellsworth when that captivating young creature steps forth into the social arena. One would be blind indeed not to vision so adorable a girl as having flocks of suitors and a whole winter filled with festivities provided by kind friends and doting relations. Little Miss Ellsworth changes the date of her coming out from September 1 to September 8 and finds the extra week exceedingly useful in which to make final decision as to "what to wear" for the momentous day.

A SEPTEMBER DEBUT TEA PROVIDES ALL SORTS OF picturesque outdoor possibilities. The John C. Ellsworths, who have this charming daughter to present, will do so in a garden setting at "Wayside," their attractive North Shore summer home. Miss Ellsworth is a younger sister of Mrs. Shaw, wife to Alexander of the polo-playing family of Robert Gould Shaw, 2d. When the Shaws take the field at Myopia there's the extraordinary happening of four brothers playing at once—Alexander aforementioned, Louis, Paul and Gould. They shine at polo, do the Shaws, being sons to a famous ten-goal veteran and inheriting a love of the sport.

Miss Gabriella Ladd, with her Belgian police dog Hector. Miss Ladd's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Maynard Ladd of Boston and Beverly Farms. As a member of the Stillington Players, Miss Ladd played a minor role with dash and precision. She has been prominently identified with North Shore society affairs in the past.

Miss Isabel Shaw joins the ranks of engaged girls, her parents having recently announced her engagement to Gideon Knapp de Forest, of Garden City, Long Island. The T. Mott Shaws are her parents and Mrs. William Faversham, Jr., (Sally Shaw) is her sister. Wedding bells will not ring in the immediate future since Mr. de Forest plans to continue his college work.

Miss Phyllis Ellsworth has her coming out this day week at the family's summer home in Manchester. It's safe to predict an enormous success for this adorable debutante. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Chess Ellsworth.

A VERITABLE GIRLISH BRIDE IS MISS ANNE BULEN Dennet, daughter of the Carl Dennetts, of Boston and Manchester. Five o'clock this afternoon sees celebrated her marriage to William Chase Paulton. Simplicity is the keynote. A garden wedding followed by a garden supper, and then dancing for the wedding guests is the late afternoon sprogram. For the ceremonial merely the two families will be present and the bride has but one attendant, her sister, Miss Priscilla Alden Dennett. Mr. Paulton comes from California and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Paulton of Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

THE NORTH SHORE IS FOOTING IT MERRILY OVER THIS holiday week-end. And when not dancing, it is dining, or being a host or a house guest. Last evening Myopians dined and danced, having polished off the four-ball golf tournament quite satisfactorily to all concerned. John T. Nightingale, Dudley Pickman, Jr., and Robert Grand, Jr., arranged the dance, and dinner hostesses were numerous. This evening Mr. and Mrs. Harrison G. Reynolds are giving a dance and dinners preceding have for hostesses and hosts, Louis G. Shaw, at Beverly Farms; Mrs. John K. Howard, at Smith's Point, and Mrs. Bayard Warren, at Pride's Crossing.

THE MYOPIA HORSE SHOW ALWAYS HAS ITS ACCOMpaniment of lunching and dining; this season the Still Very Young Set follows its elders' example so far as luncheons are concerned. Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell is hostess on Monday for her daughters, Miss Anna and Miss Elise, and small McLeans, Dicks, Lawrences, Burrages, Stockton, Mintons, Whitmans, Cutlers, etc., are guests. Then all these small equestriennes go back to the horse show, the famous Myopian affair that interests the entire countryside, gentleman rider and farmer alike. The Myopia show opens up the Myopia season, when Myopians arise with the dawn and dash across country 10 or 15 miles after the hounds as an early morning appetiser.

LENOX OVER THE HOLIDAY WEEK-END CLAIMS MISS BETTY BARRELL and Miss Frances Goodwin, who depart from beautiful Brackenside in Hamilton to be house guests of Miss Margot Flick in the Berkshires. Later they all go over to Ballston Spa for the wedding of Miss Emma Lou Smith. Meanwhile the Augustus F. Goodwins come back to Hamilton from Saratoga, where the sport of kings was the paramount August attraction, and specially interested Mr. Goodwin, who had horses entered. The Goodwins figure prominently in the Myopia Horse Show; they usually entertain a large luncheon company on the holiday and have "Brackenside" full of house guests.

MISS ISABEL LAWRENCE IS TO BE HONOR MAID FOR Miss Eloise Lawrence at the high noon ceremonial that unites the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Silsbee Lawrence with Harrison Gardner. Miss Virginia Gardner, sister of the bridegroom-elect, heads the bridesmaids' list which otherwise is interesting from the presence of Miss Emily Coolidge. Miss Edith Wolcott, Miss Evelyn Royce, Miss Emily Davis and Miss Ellen Bohlen. Richard Storey, Jr., is an usher, also David Sears, Chandler Bigelow, James Lee, Amory Lawrence, Frederick Sheffield, Walker Amory, Standish Bradford, Luke Lockwood and Arthur Hobson.

16 HURT IN CRASH ON N. Y. SUBWAY-ELEVATED

New York, Sept. 1 (INS)—Sixteen persons were injured and the motor of another transit wreck gripped a hundred others, who escaped injury, early today, when a northbound, 10-car, interborough train crashed into a work train in the Bronx, where the line is elevated. The work train was being switched from the northbound track to the center storage track when the crash occurred. Hugh McDevitt, motorman of the work train, received a broken right leg and internal injuries.

BIG NAVY FOES BASE DRIVE ON KELLOGG PACT

By PIERCE MILLER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 1—The Navy's unofficial board of strategy to deal with Congress has definitely determined to ask no more ships than the fifteen 10,000 ton cruisers provided in the bill that passed the House last session and which will be before the Senate for action in December. They have not abandoned, however, the ultimate 71 ship construction program.

Such a program would be in accord with pronouncements by President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg favoring an adequate navy for defense under the new Briand-Kellogg anti-war pact, navy officers said today.

Opposition to the navy's building program is expected from the little navy group which plans to use the Briand-Kellogg treaty as a lever.

Declaring the Navy needs about 43 modern cruisers to balance its fleet under the 1921 Arms Conference agreement, the naval strategists said that 10 of these can wait. With 15 cruisers appropriated for at the next session, the Navy would have 33 built and building.

Ten 7500 ton cruisers carrying 6-inch guns are already in commission, and eight 10,000 cruisers of 8-inch guns are building, if was pointed out, and 15 additional would be about all that could be taken care of with the existing facilities.

Authorization and construction of the 10 remaining to bring the cruisers strength up to estimated needs could be deferred until the present program is about completed.

GET $1000 LOOT IN HAT STORE

More than $1000 worth of hats, coats, neckties and other men's furnishings were stolen today by two men who broke into the Delano store running between Boylston st. and Providence st.

They were seen leaving the store by two employes of the Statler Hotel who got the number of their car and notified the police.

They also told a taxicab driver who gave chase but was outdistanced. The car was later found abandoned in the South End. It was registered in the name of a Roxbury resident who has been living at a Boston hotel for the past few days according to the police.

The thieves gained entrance to the store by removing the glass in the door on Providence st. They were placing their last armfuls of loot in the car when the hotel employes saw them.

CHESTER McLEOD TO SING AT ST. PAUL'S TOMORROW

At St. Paul's Cathedral, Chester McLeod will sing the tenor aria, "If With All Your Hearts You Truly Seek Me," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," at the evening service, at 7.30 o'clock tomorrow. The summer chorus will sing "He Watching Over Israel," also from "Elijah," at that service.

The Rev. Edward T. Sullivan's subject at the 11 o'clock service will be: "Why Tragic Tales Allure Us." At the evening service, Dr. Sullivan's topic will be: "Some Anonymous Friends of Jesus."

The Sunset Service on the Porch of the Cathedral at 7.10, will be led by the vested chorus of 40 voices, with trumpet, under the direction of Leland A. Arnold of Trinity Church, Newton Centre.

U. S. PRELATES ARRIVE AT AUSTRALIA CONGRESS

Sydney, Australia, Sept. 1 (AP)—Monsignor Edward J. Hanna, archbishop of San Francisco, and the Right Rev. R. O. Cerow, bishop of Natchez, Miss., arrived today with a large party of clergy and laity from the United States, to attend the Eucharistic Congress, opening September 6. The papal delegate, Cardinal Bonaventura Cerretti, conferred a signal honor today on the Sisters of St. Joseph, an order founded in and confined to Australia, by celebrating mass in their chapel.

COL. THAW LANDS SAFELY IN BURNING PLANE

Pamona, Cal., Sept. 1 (AP)—Col. William Thaw, 2d, World War pilot, and his flying partner, Capt. John P. Morris, exhibited their air skill by successfully landing their burning plane from a 5000-foot altitude. Taking off from March Field, Riverside, on a hop to San Diego, they were almost directly above the Kellogg Airport near here, when suddenly flames leaped from the engine. Thaw and Morris are entered together in the national transcontinental air race from New York to Los Angeles.

CURTIS TO SPEAK IN BOSTON AND PORTLAND

Washington, Sept. 1 (AP)—Enthused over the reception accorded him in the East, Senator Curtis, the Republican vice-presidential candidate, prepared today for another rally into this section. Three speeches will be delivered by the Senator next week in New England and he had a busy week-end ahead preparing for them. He will talk in Boston and in Portland and Bangor, Me. Office duties of a Senator also are demanding some of his attention.

TOM MIX BARES 2-GUN CAREER AT TRIAL

Los Angeles, Sept. 1 (AP)—Tom Mix, screen cowboy and former Texas Ranger, today stood vindicated by the court for using his fists to reply to the "wise cracks" of Will Morrissey, stage comedian about the future of the silent Tom and his horse Tony in the talking movies.

Mix was acquitted of battery charges in his trial in municipal court after the judge had declared that the Western star had acted only as "any prudent, red blooded man" would act in the battle that came early one Sunday morning at the end of a beach house warming party.

Summing up the evidence in the case, Judge Leonard Wilson concluded that both Morrissey and his wife, Midgie Miller, were intoxicated at the time of the afray-party struggle and that the comedian provoked Mix by a volley of profanity.

Mix described himself as a "ranger and film actor." He testified that he had not taken a drink of "hard liquor" in twelve years.

Mix qualified as an expert on the subject, telling of his days as a deputy sheriff in Kansas and Oklahoma, a prohibition enforcement agent in Oklahoma and as a Texas ranger.

Mix testified that Morrissey rushed at him "like a wild man" swinging blows which the actor ducked.

SEARS ROEBUCK MANAGER HERE

E. H. Powell, general advertising manager of Sears, Roebuck and Co. arrived in Boston today to study the local territory in which the company is now operating two retail department stores, a large mail order base for the New England territory and a number of automobile accessory stores.

Under Mr. Powell's charge comes the Sears, Roebuck catalog, containing information about more than 25,000 different items of merchandise.

Grown from a comparatively simple booklet of 24 pages, the edition now being prepared, will have nearly 1200 pages, and will be sent to approximately 11,000,000 American homes. In its manufacture will be employed almost every form of printing known.

Some idea of the gigantic size of this job may be obtained from the fact that it uses 82,000,000 pounds of paper, 90,000 tons of black ink, and 1,500,000 pounds of colored ink each year.

FIGHT MANAGER'S DOG MISSING; OFFERS REWARD

This German policeman of the four-legged variety has strayed from his beat. He is the property of Russell Murray of 223 Audubon rd., and he has captured many prizes at dog shows. Murray, fight manager and former boxer, has offered a reward for his return and enlisted the aid of Jack Sharkey, Henry LaMar and other boxers in the search. The dog's name is "Rex" and he is peculiarly marked with two black collars around chest and neck.

RADIO COMMISSION MOVES TO UNTANGLE AIR WAVES

Washington, Sept. 1 (INS)—The radio world today was considering the first major effort of the Federal Radio Commission to give clear reception.

Eight wide, clear frequency channels were provided for each of five zones for high powered stations of 5000 watts and more, 24 for 500-1000 watt stations and 20 for small 50-100 watt plants. An order, effective Oct. 1, was designed for conforming operation with the Dill bill and relieving congestion of the air.

U. S. DEPORTS 'MISS SPAIN,' WHO WON BEAUTY CONTEST

New Orleans, Sept. 1 (AP)—Miss Spain has been deported from the United States. The 18-year-old Senorita Agued Adorna, who represented her nation at the recent Galveston beauty contest, was placed aboard the French steamship Navarra, which will take her back to Spain. Immigration officials said she had overstayed the time permitted by her pass ort. She resented being forced to leave.

ZOGU PROCLAIMED KING BY ALBANIAN ASSEMBLY

Tirana, Albania, Sept. 1 (AP)—Ahmed Zogu, president of the Albanian Republic, today was formally proclaimed king by the National Assembly. The Assembly unanimously adopted eight revised articles of the constitution and a resolution inviting Zogu to assume the throne. He was to take the oath today.

SOUTHERN N. E. STATES CALLED DOUBTFUL BY POLL ANALYST

SEES REST SWEPT BY HOOVER

that has developed there since Governor Smith landed on the 13th Amendment with a Babe Ruth clout.

In Massachusetts the battle rages furiously, with party lines wiped out, old friendships shattered, and the whole state seething over the promise of the Democratic spokesmen to turn out the Bureaucratic meddlers at Washington.

Connecticut also is getting all "het up," with the foam-plumed Smith adherents making big headways in the cities and along the coast line.

The battle in Maine is not over the state's decision on the presidential issue, but over the size of the Republican pluralities that may be rolled up at the polls on September 10.

In the old days the slogan was, "As Maine goes so goes the nation," and for many presidential elections this early September vote of the northeast corner of the Union was a fair barometer of what the rest of the country was likely to do.

But that was in the days of tariff discussions and long before Volstead and the World War precipitated new issues that do not, for the most part, make Maine so much of a barometer as formerly.

BIG VICTORY SEEN

However, a largely increased Republican plurality in Maine one week from next Tuesday will be seized upon by the G. O. P. chiefs for its moral worth.

For that reason the Republicans will put their best licks in the effort to show that Tammany is not painting pictures in that corner of the country.

Factional differences among the Democratic leaders of Maine and some serious defections from the Jeffersonian ranks may result in Maine rolling up an unusually large lead for Hoover.

In both Vermont and New Hampshire, Governor Smith is going to get a larger vote than was given John W. Davis four years ago, and that fact indicates, but the gains do not point to a serious situation for the Republicans.

But down Cape Cod way and all along Long Island Sound, the greatest confusion and uncertainty prevail, and as the campaign warms up the uncertainty increases.

Connecticut, for example, shows Smith in the lead in this morning's totals with 2442 to 2159 for Hoover.

SMITH LEADS

In Massachusetts Smith is way out front, with a total of 12,509 to 9616 for Hoover.

From the first day the poll started, Smith has been in the lead in the Plymouth Rock country but the poll so far is largely from districts where the Smith partisans seem to be smothering the opposition. When the republican workers get their full strength on the job, Hoover will crawl up on Smith.

Chairman Baskoh has definitely piloted Massachusetts in the Smith column, a declaration that is echoed by Senator David I. Walsh, and other Bay State leaders.

Impartial observers class the Commonwealth as fighting ground, with the tide of battle likely to be in doubt until the last grand charge is made on the eve of the balloting.

These 15 electoral votes would aid Governor Smith a great deal in the final reckoning if he could sweep the "solid South," the border States and New York State.

Connecticut's seven votes and Rhode Island's five also would be worth conjuring with, if the final result is going to be close.

BAYES NORTON, EX-ELI TRACK STAR, TAKES BRIDE

Vineyard Haven, Sept. 1 (AP)—Bayes Marshood Norton, former Eli track star and Miss Marlette Hoyt Knapp were wed at the Episcopal Church here today. Norton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Norton of this place. Miss Knapp is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hoyt Knapp of Stamford, Ct., and East Chop.

The Rev. John D. Chapman, D. D., officiated. Mr. Knapp gave his daughter away. The bride's sister, Miss Martha Kunhardt Knapp, was maid of honor. Charles Gaze, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, N. Y., was best man.

CURLEY OF LYNN SEEKS WRIT TO GET ON BALLOT

Salem, Sept. 1 (AP)—Thomas S. Curley, Lynn, whose nomination papers for the Democratic candidacy for lieutenant-governor were rejected, today filed a petition for a writ of mandamus in the Supreme Court in order that his name might appear on the primary ballot.

Curley's papers were rejected when the Lynn registrars of voters and the State Election Board declined to certify all the signatures.

NEWPORT WILL GIVE PEEPER A 'CHILL'

Newport, R. I., Sept. 1—The Pennsylvania society leader and clubman, who as a "Peeping Tom" was set upon and beaten by three prominent society bathers after he watched them at their sun baths, is to be ostracized by the exclusive summer colony.

The three women who, with right jabs and left hooks, laid the "Peeping Tom" low and then tossed him into the ocean, recognized him at once as a prominent member of the summer colony.

They whispered his name to their friends, and it is reported that the Pennsylvania man has either left for home or plans to leave in a day or two, knowing that his social career here is ended.

The three women who gave the beating to the intruder and then tossed him into the sea are Mrs. Robert L. Huntington, sister-in-law of Mrs. Vincent Astor; Mrs. Herman Russell, daughter of Mrs. J. Boardman Harriman and Miss Edith Woodward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward.

The affair occurred at what is known as Second Beach, opposite the fashionable and exclusive Bailey's Beach.

Second Beach is a series of low sand dunes and affords an excellent retreat from the prying eyes of those along the highway and also the bathers at Bailey's Beach.

It was here the three young women each took a turn at their sun bath. Another member of the society colony "tipped off" the three that they were bathing each day by a man, who crept through the brush at the edge of the beach. The police decided to not out-punish the miscreant themselves.

They lay in wait for the Pennsylvanian, and when they saw a slight disturbance in the brush, they pounced upon him.

What happened for the next few minutes is largely a matter of conjecture, but witnesses have been found who saw a wild figure, with clothing almost torn from his back, running wildly down into the breezes and with his garments water-soaked, make a wild dash for his big car owned by a friend, which was parked some distance away.

APPEAL TO FULL BENCH HALTS "GUSTIN" HEARING

The petition of Frank Wallace, alias Gustin, for a writ of habeas corpus to free himself from Charles st. jail, where he is awaiting extradition to Detroit for alleged murder of a policeman, was denied by Judge Crosby of Supreme Court today. Exceptions were taken by Wallace's counsel and until the full bench has acted no extradition forthwith warrant may be granted for his removal to Michigan. Action on the petition will be decided for the municipal court today, was postponed until Tuesday.

See Aid to Navy Parley in British-French Pact

Geneva, Sept. 1 (AP)—It was reported here today that Japan deems the Franco-British tentative naval accord acceptable as a basis for future disarmament discussions by the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission.

The Japanese delegation declined to talk on the subject due, it appeared, to the fact that the replies of Japan, the United States and Italy, to whom the accord was submitted for study, have not reached France and England.

Disarmament, again urged by Russia in its acceptance of the Kellogg-Briand peace treaty, has become the dominant subject in Geneva discussions. Various delegates have voiced the opinion that unless a preliminary agreement is attained among the five great naval powers concerning limitation of warships, it would be useless to convoke another meeting of the disarmament commission.

3 BEAT UP MAN

Miss Edith Woodward, who with two other young society women at Newport, beat a prominent clubman they caught peeping while they were taking a sun bath. The man has been ostracized.

NEW LONE WOLF IN SO. BOSTON

Either a plain, ordinary burglar or another "Lone Wolf" was frightened from the bedroom of Mrs. Mary Yllilinski, Washburn st., South Boston, she reported to the police today. Mrs. Yllilinski and her husband, Michael, awakened at the same time to see the intruder come through a window and start toward a closet. Yllilinski leaped from the bed and the unbidden guest, described as about 22 years old, dived through the window and escaped.

400 WATERTOWN VOTERS FACE BAN AT PRIMARIES

More than 400 voters who have registered in Watertown since Wednesday may not be entitled to ballot in the primaries Sept. 18. The town registrars set Sept. 5 as the final date for registration but today they received notice from the secretary of state to end registration which was illegal in the state after Wednesday. Whether those registered since Aug. 29 will be allowed to vote is not yet known.

SMITH COUNTS ON APPEAL TO YOUNG VOTERS

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 1 (INS)—Governor Al Smith is counting on the votes of young folks in the coming presidential election, friends said today.

There will be thousands of young men and young women, particularly in the more densely populated Eastern states, who will cast their first votes in November and Smith will make a direct bid for their ballots.

In his speech accepting the presidential nomination, Smith said he was opposed to accepting the old order of things unless it was proved new methods were not better. The Governor and other Democratic leaders believe the just about sums up the attitude taken by the young people of the country.

Scores of letters have been received by Smith from new voters in all parts of the country announcing that they intend to support him.

With only a few games of golf on his schedule, the Governor will spend a quiet week-end, failing to stay at the executive mansion. William F. Kenny of New York, and a few other close friends are expected at the mansion today to remain over the holiday.

HUGHES OF SOMERVILLE FILES FOR LEGISLATOR

A. E. Hughes

Former Alderman Albert E. Hughes of Ward 5, Somerville, has filed nomination papers as a candidate for representative from the 34th Middlesex District. Hughes has spent his life in Somerville and has been an alderman there for 21 years.

There are now 10 candidates in the field. Rep. Charles E. Gerrish, former Rep. William J. Beal, former A. G. Edith B. David-son, Aldermen Elmer B. Hayes and Arthur G. Pearson, former Mayor Warren C. Blair, Mrs. Frances M. Weeks, Charles W. F. Bennett, and Winfield S. Patterson.

MAN, 71, SEIZED IN THEFT OF DIAMOND

Dapper and nimble—especially nimble with his fingers, the police claim—Alexander Ghindar, an aged real estate operator, was held today on a half cent toll today.

Though Ghindar, who is 71 and lives in Melrose st., South End, claims real estate as his business, his avocation is diamond stealing the police allege, and on this charge he will face the court.

The diamond stolen was the property of Daniel Brennan, Scollay sq., jeweler.

GIRL, 15, CAN'T DOLL UP, VANISHES "TO KILL SELF"

After being characterized as selfish because she wanted to wear one of the prettiest dresses of her elder sister, Jennie Rizzutti, 15, of Dartmouth st., Boston, disappeared from home leaving a suicide note behind. Jennie and her sister, Josephine, 18, argued yesterday over the dress, the police say. The younger girl was reprimanded by her parents, who told her she was selfish and sent her to her room. The note suggested the Charles river be dragged. Watertown police expressed the belief the girl was not serious in her threat.

150 DOUGHBOY DEAD IN RUSSIA FORGOTTEN

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Archangel, Russia, Sept. 1—The graves of 150 American soldiers who died on Russian soil late in 1918, during the Allied intervention in Archangel, are fast being obliterated Covered with snow seven months of the year and with grass and weeds the balance of the time, the forgotten mounds are gradually being levelled by the elements, and no voice raised in protest.

The absence of diplomatic relations between the United States and the Soviet government has entrusted the little cemetery in the far North Officially the war department cannot send a commission to the lone graves as it did in France, Belgium and England. Were it not for the neighboring plot of British soldier dead, the burial ground could hardly be recognized as a cemetery.

No mention of it is contained in reference books of American soldier cemeteries in Europe. Blue prints in the war department offices are the only accurate location of the graves.

Of the American visitors to Russia this summer—more than 1000 in number—only two, Dr. and Mrs. Eagleton of Newark, N. J., are known to have inquired about the condition of the little American army burial plot.

The British government three or four years ago offered to take care of the graves along with its own dead, but the State department in Washington declined. The only way of circumventing diplomatic procedure would be by establishing an unofficial citizens' commission. The Soviet government, it is certain, would have no objection to such a commission coming to Russia and marking the graves in a befitting manner.

$4000 Poison-Coated Store Stock and Fixtures Burned

Because they were coated with cyanide of potassium in powder form, the stock and fixtures of the variety store of Wiles & Tufts on Union st., Lynn, were today hauled to the Lynn dump and burned. The action was decided on after a conference of the store proprietors with Health Commissioner William T. Hopkins and Inspector George Flannagan.

The stock and fixtures, valued at $4000, were removed by workmen wearing gloves and goggles to guard against the deadly poison.

Early last week Arthur Wilson, one of the proprietors, discovered that cyanide used by the Rainy Method Shoe mixture, had leaked down into his Store and turned to powder. He notified the health commissioner and the store was padlocked.

DROP GARRISON AT FT. ANDREWS

Fort Andrews in Boston harbor went on the War Department list today as a "caretaker garrison," following the withdrawal of Fort Warren, which was similarly stripped of its soldiery a few days ago. Instead of being in the hands of companies of the Third Battalion, 13th Infantry, both forts are turned over to caretakers. Fort Andrews, already at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., for the summer, will remain permanently stationed there.

2 ARRESTED; RUM SEIZED IN RAIDS AT COHASSET

Cohasset, Sept. 1—Continuing a drive to "dry up" the South Shore, State troopers, accompanied by Chief of Police Hector Pelletier, today raided the Minot market and Salvador's Beach and arrested two, the homes of the owners, Bernard Salvador and Fred Grasso, both of Elm st. Thirty-two cases of liquor and empties were seized and both men were arraigned on charges of illegal selling and keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

RABBI LEAPS TO DEATH UNDER SUBWAY TRAIN

New York, Sept. 1 (INS)—Rabbi Leon Harrison of Temple Israel, St. Louis, leaped to his death under a subway train here today. He was one of the most prominent Jewish churchmen in the country.

Dr. Harrison had been ill for several months. He was to start on departure on a vacation tour of Europe last June he omitted to close his trip. He was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. He had just returned from his European trip.

SWIG LOSES IN FIGHT TO GET NAME ON BALLOT

A petition of Simon Swig for a writ of prohibition to prevent the State Ballot Law Commission from taking action to strike his name on the primary ballot as a candidate for representative from the 12th district was dismissed today by Judge Crossy in the Supreme Court. Swig, in exceptions, will take the case to the full bench.

EX-NATIONAL HEAD OF LEGION WEDS NURSE

Chicago, Sept. 1 (AP)—Howard P. Savage, former national commander of the American Legion, and Miss Lu Merry Van Oss, a nurse, were married today at St. Mary's Church. They left for Atlanta, Ga., on their honeymoon trip.

Barbara Bailey of Arlington, heading for the White Mountains, was one of the thousands leaving Boston for vacations and trips over the week-end.

HOOVER URGED TO EXTEND HIS SPEECH TOUR

Washington, Sept. 1 (INS)—Herbert Hoover is being bombarded by so many requests for speeches that it is considered likely among his advisers that he will be compelled to elaborate his tentative speaking campaign it was indicated today.

Political leaders throughout the country have refused to accept as final the declaration in official quarters that the Republican nominee at present contemplates making only three or four set speeches.

With speeches already promised for New York and New England, this plan would leave but one or two for other sections. He has been urged to extend his campaign in the East, to make an important campaign speech in Chicago, and touch the South, Big Border States and the Northwest.

WANTED IN OHIO

In the wake of these demands came a request from Governor Simeon Fess of Ohio, keynote of the national convention that named Hoover, Fess said today, that if there are but three or four speeches one of them must be in Ohio.

It is probable that in any event, Hoover's formal campaign utterances will be supplemented by short talks with delegations which will be received at the house he has taken here for campaign offices.

After busying worked in his office from early morning until late afternoon for two days, Hoover planned to take a Saturday half-holiday today by seeing the baseball game between the New York Yankees and the Washington senators.

PRINCE TO VISIT MIM.

He is looking forward to a prospective sail water fishing trip in Chesapeake Bay before campaign duties become too arduous. This is an annual trip, which has been denied him for two years because of politics.

Conferences with members of the national headquarters staff were on Hoover's schedule today. He also was to receive Frederick M. Prince of Boston, a pre-convention booster, and Senator Curtis of Kansas will be an early caller.

All Life's Joys Gone For Kellogg; Gets Golf Clubs Mixed

London, Sept. 1 (AP)—A wrong set of golf clubs is lessening the enjoyment of Secretary Frank B. Kellogg's stay in Ireland, says a dispatch to the Evening News from Dublin.

The item relates that he had planned a day by avoiding public engagements and playing golf, but when he arrived in Dublin he found his own set of clubs had been replaced in his luggage by a strange outfit. He has tried several other sets that were lent to him, but thus far none has suited him.

TEN REVERE DOGS SHOT

In the presence of several hundred men, women and children, Inspector Franklin J. Nolan and Dog Officer William Cutley today killed 10 dogs in the rear of a barn on True st., Revere.

The shooting was done by order of Mayor John B. Child, who had instructed Chief of Police Tighe to exterminate all unlicensed dogs at once, rather than send them first to the pound and then ship the animals to the Animal Rescue League in Boston.

Chief Tighe assigned Inspector Nolan to assist Cutley, and the two men started out for the farm where a large number of dogs had been reported.

Earlier said 20 dogs have been killed in Revere this week, and the killing will be resumed next week until all those unlicensed have been disposed of.

In addition to has collected more than $200 in license fees from residents whose animals have been gathered up and taken to the pound. Payment of a $2 license fee in owners is permitted to take the dog home.

PROHIBITION IS SNOWED UNDER IN NEW SO. WALES

Sydney, Australia, Sept. 1 (AP)—Prohibition was defeated by more than two to one in the New South Wales State referendum today. Voting was compulsory. The count showed 702,909 against prohibition and 165,145 in favor of it.

Egg-Hurling Adds Zest to Smith-Hoover 'War'

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 1 (AP)—The Smith and anti-Smith fines in this Southern capital city were fairly well drawn today as the outgrowth of an egg-throwing, free-for-all fight which turned the first meeting of the "Hoover Democratic Club" of Richland County into disorder.

The highlight of the meeting came when the owner of a bag of eggs got into a rough-and-tumble fight, during which the bag was crushed. One egg remained intact, however, and this the owner seized and pitched at the head of an opponent. It landed squarely, and the fighting commenced. For several minutes the free-for-all continued, while a group stood on benches and cheered.

Finally yesterday order the crowd listened to George W. Beckett, a Smith holler. Promptly half of the audience left and a part of the group remaining demanded a speech from R. Charlton Wright, editor of the Columbia Record, who responded with an address for Smith.

The meeting ended with announcement of H. O. Salley that he was secretary of the Hoover Democratic Club, and a suggestion made to him that he hereafter call secret meetings because "they will only break up every open meeting."

During the whole show the portraits of Smith and Robinson gazed down benignly upon the scene.

SWAIN SEIZES RING AND RUNS, HELD IN $1000

Nathan Rosenthal ran. He is a good runner. In the words of an erstwhile sweetheart he "beat it" through the door, out of the house, and down the street.

And when he ran he clutched the $250 diamond ring that had signified his engagement to the fair maid from whom he ran, Diana Richmond, 19, of Bryant st., Malden.

All this Miss Richmond testified in Malden court today, where Nathan, a young man living in Howland st., Roxbury, was arraigned on the charge of larceny of the engagement ring he had given his girl.

Miss Richmond was at a loss to understand it all. She had "kept company" for 16 months, she told Judge Newton. They had been engaged for almost a year. She "loved" three times a week, she said.

A few days ago they went for an auto ride and then to the movies, she said. He bought her candy and they went home in a cab, and talked over their marriage plans, Diana testified. They held hands.

Then, she declared, Nathan asked her to give him the ring, so he might match the correct size wedding ring. He tried to pull it from her finger and she warned him ours an act might break their friendship.

They then went to her home and sat on the piazza, he drew one tenderly into his lap, and then he disappeared. Later they were seen in a house and he insisted upon seeing the ring.

She took it off. He said it looked fine. He walked out with it, she declared. He turned around and "beat it," she said.

Mrs. Gertrude Sax, who lives in Diana's home, corroborated the testimony that Nathan had thrown Diana into his lap before he made off with the ring.

Nathan testified that after Diana got the ring, her attitude toward him changed. He said he bought it in the Indian Head shop and it wasn't paid for. That very point, his counsel argued, meant Nathan couldn't be guilty of larceny for the ring wasn't really Diana's or Nathan's.

But Judge Newton thought differently and held Nathan in $1000 for the Grand Jury.

RAIL LINES ARE JAMMED WITH HOLIDAY RUSH

The holiday travel rush was on today, with trains and automobiles carrying thousands of persons out of the city for the week-end, while others poured in from the country to add to the vanguard of returning vacationists.

The available supply of Pullmans of the Boston & Maine, New Haven and Boston & Albany was taxed by the movement of vacationists and holiday travelers, which started last night and is expected to continue through to Tuesday.

By Tuesday night railroad officials estimated 100,000 summer residents, the equivalent of a city the size of Cambridge, will have removed southward and westward from the resorts of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts to their homes in New England and points on the Atlantic seaboard, from Maine to Florida.

Combination with this great fall exodus, much of it into the new North Station, but more over B. & M. commuting trains, will be the world's Philadelphia and points south, and to Cleveland, Chicago and other centers in the west and the Great Lakes region, to nearby resorts. It was estimated the outgoing traffic today would be greater than the record annual 90,000 users to at least 125,000, with other thousands going over the roads for autumnal trips.

Boston & Maine through trains for the Provinces, Maine, the White Mountains and Vermont were being run in sections.

SOUTH BOSTON MAN GETS 2 MONTHS ON RUM CHARGES

One of the heaviest penalties meted out for violation of liquor laws was imposed upon John J. Hourihan of South Boston by Judge Logan in South Boston court today. Hourihan was arraigned on two counts of exposing and selling intoxicating liquor. On the first count he was fined $100 and on the second he was fined $1000 and given two months in the House of Correction. He appealed.

Campbell and the Vici Kid

To prove the superiority of the union press agent Campbell B. Casad, in advance of "Just A Minute," endows Count Berni Vici, one of the troupe, with a dual birthright. In one story Mr. Casad calls the Count a "real Hungarian nobleman." In another, Mr. Casad gives him an Italian title, O, ho!

Kidding the Movies Again

When Ruth Thomas, as the toiling vaudevillian in "Excess Baggage" at the Plymouth, is awarded her movie contract she is overcome with joy. "Why!" she gasps, "I know I'm supposed to say something here, but I can't think what." "Ah," murmurs another, "perfect for the silent drama."

ONE MORE WEEK BEFORE DRAMA'S SEASON IS FULLY LAUNCHED UPON ITS DESTINY

A FOREFIT! Will the gentleman pay it, or is he going to be a blinding, shrinking coward? The answer to this, little dears, is in "Her Cardboard Lover," with Marion Davies and Nils Asther (State).

WELL, IT'S SATURDAY, ISN'T IT? And a fellow's got to go through. June Collyer is the sponge-holder, but the bathing gentleman wouldn't give his name. "Four Sons" at the Olympia and Fenway.

HELENE COSTELLO, or rather her silvery shadow, is now emoting audibly in "Lights Of New York," popular "talker" at the Scollay Square.

SWEETHEARTS are Karl Dane and George K. Arthur (in girl's clothes) in "Detectives," Orpheum. George is a sweet sugar and Karl thinks he's a eugenic daddy, or something.

TICKLED SILLY is Reed Howes when Esther Ralston elects to stroke his sprouting chin whiskers. The boys who sell shaving cream could write a nice ad to go with this picture, but personally we prefer the old fashioned mug and brush. This is "Sawdust Paradise," Metropolitan.

NEW SEASON STEPS GINGERLY AHEAD

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IN the bygone and, perhaps, less fretful days of the theater, the opening of a new season was accompanied by considerable trumpeting of managerial bugles, solemn promises of fruitful days ahead and a general efflorescence of new drama on Labor Day. Times have changed—for this season at least. There can be no rush of the faithful to a half dozen openings on Monday night, for the season already is moderately under way with four attractions. Only George M. Cohan's "Whispering Friends" will enter the field with something new, taking possession of the Messrs. Erlanger, Dillingham and Ziegfeld temple of art on Hollis st.

* * *

THE most respected and best informed among our local judges of the drama, Charles Howard, of Newspaper Row, asserts that not in 25 years has Labor Day rolled around and brought to the hungry playgoer only a single choice of employment for a good first nighter. Already the season, partly established, is doing very well, thank you. High temperature, it has been discovered, is not conducive to aesthetic indoor amusement, and the hazard of an early start presented problems in theatre economics that might have harried the impetuous producers. As it turned out, there was no cause for alarm. In fact, prosperity settled serenely upon the two pioneers of mid-August daring, with the result that an additional week was added to the engagements of "Sunny Days" and "The Great Necker."

* * *

WITH the August list raised to five attractions by Mr. Clive's "The Bellamy Trial," Sammy Lee's "Cross My Heart" and the Jack McGowan comedy, "Excess Baggage," it may be taken as an indication that Labor Day is in a fair way to lose the prestige of holding away as the season's zero hour.

* * *

MR. E. E. CLIVE, apparently, is improving his mileage. As the only hands-across-the-sea producer in these parts and listed in Lloyd's as the only regularly established commuter between Boston and London, he has embarked upon the season with a new crop of London-made player folk who rank high in their home town and who, if the incident is to be judged by events on upper Stuart st., are touching the torch to another Clive success. This time it is "The Bellamy Trial." In other days a transatlantic jump by Mr. Clive usually yielded one new face for Copley audiences; the last hop brought a near dozen new actors to these hospitable shores. By careful calculation it will be observed that Mr. Clive has raised his mileage from one actor in a round trip to one for every 257 miles.

* * *

NO new season breaks upon the theater without its tragic changes; without an obituary column. This year marks the departure of the Columbia Amusement Company's burlesque expedition and the ascendency of Mr. I. H. Herk's Mutual Association. The Columbia circuit steps off into oblivion, the casualties including Thomas R. Henry, who brilliantly directed the affairs of the Gayety for a decade, and Charlie Waldron's Casino on Hanover st., which now will tempt fate with stock burlesque. All that is left of established burlesque is the Mutual.

BILL TAKES HIS BUMPS

Life is just one bump after another to Will Mahoney. For 25 years, since he was seven years old, Will has been dancing and singing for his supper. For the last 10 years he has been doing a trick falling dance that is associated with his name wherever vaudeville is played. He stares dancing, with a wide grin on his face which slowly dissolves into terror as he falls across the stage. His legs move faster and faster, but bang! —down he goes. Since last October, Will has been the featured comedian in "Take the Air," musical comedy which Gene Buck has built around him, and which will be offered to Boston playgoers at the Wilbur commencing Monday evening, September 10.

Will Mahoney

Five times in each performance Will falls all the way across the stage, and ends up by falling down a 20-foot flight of stairs.

Leavitt Is Regarded as Omen of Luck to Cast

Now that Douglas Leavitt has joined the cast of "Sunny Days," at the Shubert, his associates are wondering if he will bring to it and to them the same good fortune that has covered over other productions in which he has appeared.

Like "Sunny Days," Leavitt joined his last two shows after they were well started. In each case, previously, his entrance into the cast seemed to inject new life and the engagements were characterized by their unusually long runs. For instance, in "Gay Paree"—which he just left—he played for 37 consecutive weeks in "The Student Prince."

Looking Ahead

SEPTEMBER 10—
"Golden Dawn," an operetta, at the Shubert.
"Just a Minute," new musical play, at the Tremont.
"Take the Air," a Gene Buck production, at the Wilbur.

SEPTEMBER 17—
Frank Craven in "The 19th Hole" at Hollis.

FILM FARE FOR NEW WEEK

METROPOLITAN—Esther Ralston in "Sawdust Paradise" (first run), adapted from the story by John Manker Watters. A tale of tents and tabernacles, with a touch of melodrama here and there, and the usual condiment of sweet romance. The cast includes Reed Howes, Hobart Bosworth, Tom Maguire and Mary Alden. Luther Reed directed. A Paramount picture. On the stage, Joseph Santley's "Wonderful Girl" revue with Rodemich and bandshow.

* * *

LOEW'S STATE—Marion Davies in "Her Cardboard Lover" (first run), adapted from the stage play by Jacques Deval. Ultra-smart French farce picturing the wiles of an American school girl in capturing the heart of a highly desirable Continental gentleman. The cast features Nils Asther, Jetta Goudal, Andres de Segurola and Tenen Holtz. Robert Leonard directed. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. On stage, Eddie Dowling of "Honeymoon Lane" fame, assisted by Kate Smith and James Hanley. Also "Fuzzy" Knight.

* * *

KEITH-ALBEE—Warner Baxter and Martha Sleeper in "Danger Street" (first run), adapted from the story by Harold McGrath. Melodrama dealing with New York's high and low life. The cast includes Duke Martin and Frank Mills. Ralph Ince directed. An F. B. O. picture. Also vaudeville.

* * *

OLYMPIA AND FENWAY—"Four Sons" (first run), adapted from the story by Mrs. I. A. R. Wylie. A biographical story of four boys who forgot mother. Cast includes James Hall, Francis X. Bushman, Charles Morton, George Meeker, Margaret Mann and June Collyer. John Ford directed. A William Fox picture. Also Movietone.

* * *

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—Karl Dane and George K. Arthur in "Detectives" (first run), original screen story by Robert Lord and Chester Franklin. Hilarious comedy of hotel employes—the house "dick" vs. the head bellhop. Cast includes Marceline Day, Tenen Holtz and Felicia Derenova. Chester Franklin directed. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. Also vaudeville.

* * *

MODERN AND BEACON—(Starting today) Lya de Putti in "The Scarlet Lady" (first run), screen story by Bess Meredyth. Romantic drama of the flaming Russian Revolution. Cast includes Don Alvarado, Warner Oland and Otto Matieson. Alan Crosland directed. A Columbia picture. Also May McAvoy in "A Reno Romance" (first run). Adventures of a reckless society deb. Cast includes Ralph Graves and Hedda Hopper. Ralph Graves directed. A Warner Brothers' picture.

* * *

SCOLLAY—"Lights of New York." This melodramatic "talker" is now about to spend its third straight week downtown. You may not like it, but you ought to see it if you want to keep step with the latest development of the shadow stage. Cast includes Helene Costello, Wheeler Oakman, Gladys Brockwell and Cullen Landis.

ME? I'M FUNNY DUNN

COMPLACENCY ITSELF is Frank McHugh, as Jimmy ("Funny") Dunn, wise-cracking vaudevillian who can "steal a bow" with the best of them. Mr. McHugh is the life of the party in "Excess Baggage," Plymouth.

SMART STARS AT GAYETY

Two favorite players of burlesque, Norma Noel and Charles Carroll, will be featured stars of "The Girls of the U. S. A." which opens Monday afternoon at the Gayety.

Miss Noel is a "hot" dancer, whose cavortings are of great interest and whose singing of blues has stopped shows wherever she has played. Carroll, portrayer of tramp comedian roles, is one of the cleverest in burlesque, and this year has a wealth of new material.

Norma Noel

Billy Mifflin, a boob comedian, is another featured performer who is expected to produce considerable laughter. His droll "wise-cracks" are loaded with humor and of the kind that burlesque audiences enjoy. He is perfectly at home with a girl-and-music show and never loses a chance to have a little fun all of his own.

WHAT'S WHAT With Shows REMAINING

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

"Excess Baggage" at the Plymouth. (Second week.) Back stage in vaudeville, with trouble strewn over love's thorny path.

* * *

"Cross My Heart" at the Colonial. (Second week.) Made to order for loyal disciples of mirth, melody and dance.

* * *

"The Bellamy Trial" at the Copley. (Third week.) Subscribing to the theory that there's no place like a court room for good drama.

* * *

Taylor Holmes in "The Great Necker" at the Wilbur. (Fifth week.) A middle aged gentleman of means has a hot time with the flapper. The last week.

"Sunny Days" at the Shubert. (Fourth week.) Billy B. Van and a cluster of girl friends make you forget the humidity. The last week.

COHAN SHOW OPENS THE HOLLIS

The opening of the new season at the Hollis St. Theater, beginning Monday night, Labor Day, has for its first attraction, George M. Cohan's newest farce, "Whispering Friends," which recently completed a six months' run at the Hudson Theater, New York. The cast features William Harrigan, Lily Cahill, Louise Prussing, Leward Meeker, Alexander F. Frank and June Mullin.

William Harrigan

In "Whispering Friends" Mr. Cohan is said to have struck a new vein in the marital complications in which his characters are involved, most of them of a hilariously laughable nature, with a few scenes of gripping emotional intensity. The story shows how friends, anxious to protect their gals, often in their mischievous interference disrupt true love affairs.

The dialogue is said to scintillate with characteristic Cohan wit, brilliant repartee and satirical wisecracking.

The engagement is limited to two weeks.

"Cross My Heart" Wins Title in Open Competition

Choosing the title for a musical comedy is hardly the simple thing it seems. When Sammy Lee was searching for the right name for his new show, now at the Colonial, he offered a cash prize to his players for the winning title.

During the competition all hands tried their luck. The winner was a certain haggard gentleman, later identified as the author of the book, Daniel Kusell. His nomination, of course, was "Cross My Heart."

Because the story concerns a little girl who tells "whoppers," the title is not at all far fetched. But it seems that the winning titlist, so the players say, has yet to come through with the ice cream cones as he promised at the time of the award.

SPRAY WORKS OVERTIME IN FILM

A temperamental fountain contributed to the day's amusement on the set where Robert Z. Leonard was directing Marion Davies in "The Cardboard Lover," which starts Monday at Loew's State.

The fountain was in a spacious garden set at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and was supposed to be in Monte Carlo, where the locale is laid. It was designed to throw a thin cloud of spray fifteen feet above a piece of statuary which served as jet.

Marion Davies

Everything was ready and Leonard started shooting when suddenly the fountain spouted about thirty feet in the air and Miss Davies, Nils Asther and the rest of the company ducked hurriedly for shelter. Then the fountain became normal again.

"Ready," called Leonard, "let's try it again."

Half way through the scene, the fountain ceased entirely.

"Where does this thing turn on, anyway?" asked Leonard, as he led an expedition off-stage. There they found a small boy, an extra, who had wandered away from an adjoining set.

"Hello, Mr. Leonard," said the lad, pointing to a lever. "What does this thingumajig do anyway?"

Graphic Scenes of Ellis Island in "Four Sons"

A highly dramatic, and likewise instructive, sequence of scenes appears in Fox Films "Four Sons," new film at the Olympia and Fenway.

Some of the action takes place in the examination rooms and detention wards of Ellis Island, the gateway of the new arrivals from foreign countries. Director Ford had these sets constructed in facsimile to the rooms in the federal buildings on the island, and every bit of routine shown in the picture is carried out to the letter by Ford.

TWO MORE RUSSIANS

SLAVS TO DUTY. Yes, sir, business is Russian in Hollywood. Here are a couple of good Latins temporarily gone Muscovite (its quite the vogue, you know) for "The Scarlet Lady." Don Alvarado, Lya de Putti.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Dear, Dear, How True it Is!

Having put in 35 energetic years in the show business, Oscar Radin, musical director of "Sunny Days" at the Shubert, may be condoned for a cynical observation. Quoths Mr. Radin. "I have noticed that the first thing an actor does when he becomes successful is to get rid of his wife."

Little Soft Music, Professor

Prof. Maurice Zam, whose whamming of the piano disturbed the slumbers of Officer Leary in Cambridge recently, is embarking, like Al Smith, on a "wider field of action." Beginning Monday Prof. Zam will publicly assault his grand piano upon the stage of the Keith-Albee. No dozing, audiences!

CIRCUS FILM SHOWN AT THE 'MET'

In reporting upon the qualities of "Sawdust Paradise," new picture at the Metropolitan, one might have some justification in saying, "And a little child shall lead them." For the plot has much to do with religion—and a baby.

The baby, although not named in the cast, is by far and away the best actor of the bunch. And this despite the fact that the dramatis personæ lists such famous people as Esther Ralston, Reed Howes and Hobart Bosworth.

When we say that the baby outshines his (or her as the case may be) fellow players it is no idle assertion. Never before in the shadow drama has an infant been so distinguished. Perhaps some day the little one may be another Emil Jannings or Mary Pickford. Who can tell?

Miss Ralston and Mr. Howes are seen as a pair of carnival performers. In the beginning they are none too noble, but Hobart Bosworth soon appears as an itinerant revivalist, and the pair commence to perk up toward religion.

The story intends to follow the course of being as lifelike as possible, but it often loses its way and drops deep into the familiar Hollywood quagmires.

At times it achieves moments of reality, bits of fine action and photography, but again it will trip, stagger and fall. Nevertheless one consoles himself with the baby and the thought that by the time the little one grows up there will be nothing silly about motion pictures.

On the Metropolitan stage, Joseph Santley has another of his tuneful and colorful revues. Assisting are Gene Rodemich and his band, Alice Roy, Art Frank and the Cumby-Hale girls.

VAUDEVILLE CHANGES

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—Lewis and Dody, favorite comedy team; Marino and Mona company in a musical revue; Arthur Jarrett and company in "Cupid's Closeups"; Burt and Hazel Skatelle in a variety act; other turns and films.

KEITH-ALBEE—Kerr and Weston and company in "Stepping in Society"; "Blackface" Eddie Ross and his "African Harp"; Maurice Zam, Cambridge concert pianist, with Nina Caponi, soprano; other turns and films.

SCOLLAY—The Vitaphone and Movietone acts; "The Pullman Porters," Singing act; Conlin and Glass; other features and films.

OLYMPIA & FENWAY—Same as Scollay.

FLOWER OF THE FLOCK ON LOCAL STAGES

JUNE MULLIN is one of the warring newlyweds in "Whispering Friends," new Cohan show opening at the Hollis.

VERENBITA HOOTS represents the pictorial advantages to be gained by a trip to "Sunny Days," any day at the Shubert.

FROM SPORTS TO STAGE

Born in Hudson, Mass., educated in Winchester and Boston, Brenda Bond, who is playing one of the principal roles in "Just A Minute," the new musical play coming to the Tremont, won her first publicity through her prowess as an amateur athlete.

While attending the Winchester high school and playing on the basketball team, Miss Bond won the Massachusetts gold medal for being the best all-round athlete. Since then she has continued athletics and at present is an expert in nearly all sports.

Brenda Bond

Following her three years' term in the Winchester high school, Miss Bond moved to Boston where she attended Leland Powers School of Expression. Graduating from this school she made her debut in a minor role in the musical play, "Jack & Jill." Her ability as an actress being appreciated she soon had the role of understudy to the leading role and before the season was over she was definitely established.

Gifted Young Soprano in Opera, "Golden Dawn"

Bonnie Emerie, the remarkably young soprano in "Golden Dawn," coming to the Shubert Monday evening, September 10th, has been spoken of by critics as having a voice of rare quality. Miss Emerie comes from St. Louis, where she attended public and private schools, but she was a reaching out for an operatic career, so her parents took her abroad to finish her musical and dramatic education. She spent one year at the Sorbonne in Paris and another at the Conservatoire at Fontainbleau.

Bonnie Emerie

"There are thousands of American girls," says Miss Emerie, "studying under famous teachers who are trying to make them believe they are soon to rock the world in grand opera. But what our girls really need is an opportunity and, more important, some tutoring by one experienced in stage work."

Brooklyn and a Sense of Humor

By MARJORIE GATESON
of "The Great Necker," at the Wilbur

Being born in Brooklyn and raised there has been a great help to me in musical comedies, said Miss Gateson. "As a matter of fact, it's been my greatest help. For example: Do you remember how, when Francis has refused to sing after having been coaxed by everyone in the room in turn and Mabel had pleaded lack of practice as an excuse for disinclination to play the piano? Do you remember, after those things had taken place, how the conversation languished and dropped, and threatened to die. And do you remember how things brightened if in the midst of this pall biting and uneasy silence, someone mentioned Brooklyn? How they laughed and cackled, and let loose the flood gates of their mirth!

Marjorie Gateson

How their rapier-like wit played and flickered about that word "Brooklyn!" They pounced on it as a cat on a mouse. They slapped it, they batted it, they turned it over and over, they tossed it in the air, they lay on their backs and pawed it. And when it had become shapeless and flaccid from overhandling, they fell on it like wolves and tore it to pieces.

You know, that sort of thing used to irk me. I took it as a personal affront. In fact, my witty acquaintance saw that I did. They forced it on me. And in self-defense, I was forced to develop a wit of my own. So whenever they twitted me about Brooklyn, I twitted them about Manhattan. Can't you imagine that nimble interplay of wit? Like two heavy-footed saurians of the UpperCretaceous period capering about each other, and clouting each other. But through long practice, I really did develop a vein of my own, and when I managed to make people laugh who didn't depend for their humor on "Brooklyn," I decided to put my comedy to use.

I started in musical comedy, but I soon realized that my forte was comedy in the straight dramatic play. "The Great Necker" has offered me a wonderful opportunity to apply this ability and I am taking full advantage of it.

GENIUS SHOWN BY YOUTHFUL FILMSTER

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 1—I saw what looks to me like a promising youngster in the movies. He did a scene in pantomime that was almost a juvenile edition of Charlie Chaplin.

The lad's name is Paul Guerimman. He is a Russian refugee and was brought to this country by Jesse Lasky after the boy bombarded him with requests to be permitted to come to America and go into the movies.

The lad plays a scene with Katheryn Carver in Adolphe Menjou's next picture, "His Private Life." He speaks almost no English, but so perfect is his pantomime that the director is not conscious of this lack. English will come soon, for the lad is being sent to school and educated.

I believe he is a great find and Adolphe Menjou and others on the set agree with this.

* * *

JACK WARNER is on his way to New York, skipping over the rails as fast as The Chief will take him. His brother, Harry, sent for him post haste, for when all has been said and done, it's up to Jack to manage the First National studios once they come into the Warner family. While Jack wouldn't say the actual signature was on the contract, for the Warners to take control of First National, he said it was as good as signed.

There will be no immediate house cleaning at First National either; Jack says there are lots of good people there, and with all Warner Brothers plan to do they can use plenty of talent. Hal Wallace, publicity head of Warners, accompanied Warner east.

CLIVE BROOK has a yearning to visit his native England, so much so that he has gone ahead and made all arrangements to sail for London November 1.

"If I plan such a trip," he says optimistically, "it may come to pass. You never know in this business."

At the moment he is finishing "Interference" and then he rushes into Conrad's "Victory" to play the lead. With Lewis Milestone directing "Victory" it looks like a big day for Mr. Brook, or, at least, a promising picture. Of course, the name "Victory" will be changed. So perhaps we shouldn't even mention it in passing.

* * *

YOU pick up little bits of gossip here and there as you travel around the studios. At the Fox Company, Arthur Stone is playing a young married man who never lets home or business interfere with pleasure. "Husbands Are Liars," is the title, and contrasting with Mr. Stone is Conrad Nagel, who is the conscientious type of husband who never lets anything interfere with his business or domestic duties.

Raymond Cannon is directing and the two wives are June Collyer and Sharon Lynn.

Another little bit of news is Edwin Justus Mayer's new contract. Eddie, author of "The Firebrand" and writer of many of our best titles, has now agreed to write titles for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the next six months.

Power's 'Black Sheep'

February 23, 1928.

PERSONAL, NOT FOR PUBLICATION.

Mr. Frank I. Martin,
Columbia, Missouri.

Dear Mr. Martin:

Far be it from me to suggest that the electric industry is "clean as a hound's tooth" or that there has not been far too great prices paid for common stocks of public utilities, which, as the attached editorial says, should never enter the sphere of highly speculative investment.

Also and far seeing men—they have not been numerous—within the industry have, in public addresses, deplored these unjustifiable speculations.

I only venture to suggest that not utilities, all holding companies have not been guilty of such deplorable practices.

In Missouri, about $20,000,000 in properties have, so far as I know, been affected by such speculation. This is about 4 per cent of the total value of utilities in the state, or 1½ per cent of the total value of the electric industry in Missouri.

I am among those who believe that there should be little, if any, margin for speculative profit in a public utility. I am willing to concede that the entre preneur, the promoter, the fellow who takes a chance, works hard, organizes a lot of communities into a connected going concern, puts light and power, water, gas, etc, where there were none of these things before, is entitled to a promoters profit, say 10, 15, or 20 per cent, but not 100, 500, 700 per cent.

The point I desire to make is that not all utility companies, not all holding companies, are guilty of speculation and profiteering and that editorials may very well make a just distinction between white and black sheep. Honestly, the difficulty of distinguishing what is right from what is wrong is so great in the industry, that,at times,I am hopelessly confused.

Very sincerely yours,

This "personal" letter tells its own story of a confession that Power's "teeth" aren't clean, and that it has its "black sheep."

FIRST REAL CLUE TO AMUNDSEN

Tromsoe, Norway, Sept. 1 (AP)—The first definite clew to the fate of Roald Amundsen and five men who accompanied him on his expedition to rescue members of the Nobile Arctic party, was brought here today.

It was a float from the seaplane in which the adventurers started for Spitsbergen on June 18.

The float was found adrift in Arctic waters by the Norwegian fishing vessel Fred. It was found near Bear Island.

SHE BORROWED HIS PANTS FOR TEN MAD MINUTES—

—and then the fun began!

IT'S A RIOT!

"IF women could only wear the pants in this world," says merry Marion, "what a lot we could accomplish." You'll scream at what happens when Marion disguises herself as a bell-hop and steals a man right out from under the slinky nose of a professional vampire. It's easy enough to annex a man, but to hold him is something else again. How Marion does it in this uproarious comedy will make you laugh longer and harder than you've ever laughed before in your life. The Broadway stage hit is at last on the screen! Here's the picture that no one can afford to miss—and no one will want to!

"Listen, girls, never be afraid of the professional vamp type as a rival for the man you want. The vamp is the easiest sap in the world to fool at her own game."

"If you really want to get the fine points on how to land a gentleman friend, be with me at my picture and see all and know all!"

National Doubles Final at Longwood Today

ALWAYS A MERMAID, NEVER A JUDGE. But Miss Albina Osipowich, above, a mighty popular young lady since her return from the Olympics, will act in an official capacity at the National and New England women's swimming championships at Norumbega Park today. The Worcester miss will prove an added attraction to a colorful natatorial bill. The fans are anxious to get a glimpse at the young lady who proved a sensation at Amsterdam.

FLASH FROM THE ORIENT. Miss Hitomi, Japanese runner, proved herself the best woman athlete in the land of Nippon by her showing in the Olympics. She also covered herself with glory in other international meets.

—International Newsreel Photo

LADIES' DAY AT THE TIAJUANA KENNEL CLUB. An "all-women's" greyhound race for the Agua Caliente Cup found the fair sex breaking into the sport light unassisted. The owners, judges, starters and officials were all women, and a brindle bitch, Mary Fitz, won the race.

BIG CHIEF TOUCHDOWN. Eugene Fritz, an Osage Indian, will lead the Haskell Institute eleven on the gridiron this fall. The Indians, who were seen in Boston on a few occasions against B. C. and Harvard, will have another good team.

TUNNEY VISITS TRINITY. Gene is shown with some friends leaving the grounds of the beautiful Trinity College in Dublin, Ireland. The retired champion is having a fine time in the land of his ancestors.

HERTLE FAMILY REJOICES. Their darling daughter, Ethel, added $10,000 to the home coffers by winning the ten-mile swim, feature of the Canadian National Exhibition in Lake Ontario. Mr. and Mrs. Hertle are on the extreme left, with Ethel in the middle. Her sister, Evelyn, is crouching in front, while the boy with the white shirt and knickers is her brother, Charles. Miss Hertle won from a classy field in this Wrigley marathon swim, including Gertrude Ederle, English channel conqueror.

Olympic Stars in Franklin Meet

Franklin, Mass., Sept. 1 (INS)—Lee Barnes and Bob King of Lima, O., both Stanford University stars, are here today to compete in the track and field events which will mark celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the town.

Among American Olympic team members who will compete are Jimmy Quinn of Holy Cross, of the record-breaking relay team; Whitey Michelson of Dorchester and Jimmy Henigan of Roxbury, of the marathon team, and Clarence De Mar, veteran marathon runner.

Barnes holds the unofficial world's pole vault record of 14 feet 1½ inches and King is Olympic high jump champion.

INTERNATIONAL RACE AT REVERE TONIGHT

Seven riders are ready to face the gun in the International Derby at the Revere Cycle Track tonight. This race is over a distance of 100 kilometers, which is equal to 62½ miles, the longest and most colorful competition of the entire bike season.

Frankie Keenan, George Chapman, Teddy Wyndsun, Albert Le Tournier Rene Hougman, Larry Gaffne and Francesco Zucchetti are the men who will pedal for victory at Nat Butler's oval.

Keenan of Revere is the favorite to win the race. But he has a hard job on his hands to out-pedal the veteran Chapman, who has been holding the International Derbies for a good many years.

Keenan's youth and strength, however, would give him the advantage on Chapple, who is showing signs of many years on the bicycle track.

Then, too, the other contenders are to be figured upon. All are from foreign countries and not a great deal is known of their ability. Any one of the five might prove a dark horse and upset the dope.

A parade of nations will be held before the race. Keenan will parade bearing the emblem of Uncle Sam. Then each of the other riders will follow with their native flags flowing in the breezes as they pedal around the track in a colorful scene. Gaffney will represent Ireland; Zucchetti, Italy; Geogman, Holland; Le Tournier, France, and Wyndsun, Belgium.

Another fine contest has been arranged in the semifinal. The three-hour cousins, Bobby and Jimmy will be in a special sprint match that will be decided by the best two out of three heats with Carl Stockholm and Chick Meyers as opponents.

Egyptian Swimmer Swims English Channel

Folkestone, England, Sept. 1 (AP)—Tahai Reinf, Egyptian swimmer, succeeded in crossing the English Channel today. He landed here at 1:48 p.m., 21 hours and five minutes after he entered the water at Cape Gris Nez, France.

CLYDE BARNHART RELEASED BY PIRATES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 1 (INS)—Clyde Barnhart, veteran outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been released on option to the Indianapolis club of the American Association, it was learned today. At the same time Adam Comorosky has been recalled from Indianapolis to take Barnhart's place

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"HEAVYWEIGHT boxers are nursed along more carefully than the most delicate plants," was Mr. Boston's opening shot today. "I cite the case of Ernie Schaaf as the chief example.

"I found Schaaf at Bishop's Manor, Wrentham, in company with Phil Schlosberg, his manager and trainer. Schaaf has his own private gymnasium, beautiful living and sleeping quarters in the manor and the solitude of the country.

"Schlosberg an old navy champion, not only believes Schaaf is a great heavyweight, but he contends he will some day be the champion of the world.

"Ernie is only 20 years of age and I have brought him along slowly during the past two years,' Phil told me. 'I did not care to overmatch him as this is how most young boxers are ruined.

"SCHAAF has been schooled and has gained in experienced. He is now ready to shoot for the big money. After Ernie gets through with Big Boy Peterson on next Tuesday night at Braves Field, the promoters can bring on fellows like Johnny Risko, Phil Scott and Tommy Loughran. Ernie can lick them.

"One must be patient when developing a young heavyweight. I'll confess that at times I have been tempted by some of the huge purses I have been offered to pit Schaaf against men whom I figured had something on him. I have been rewarded by seeing Ernie come along easily until he is now able to step in there with the best of them.

"YOU can tell the world that Schaaf will conquer Big Boy Peterson on next Tuesday night. The whole wide world will then be ahead of him.

"I HAVE been trying since last May to get Peterson to agree to meet Schaaf. It was in May that Schaaf and Peterson met at the Arena. In the second round, Ernie had Peterson on the floor twice. Then Ernie got one of his eyes closed and didn't carry through right.

"Schaaf wasn't right for that bout. I believe the fact he was later operated upon for infected tonsils and an obstruction in his nose proves my contention. Since his operation Schaaf has licked Pat McCarthy and Harold Mays.'

MR. BOSTON remarked on the amount of effort Schlosberg has put into developing Schaaf.

"Phil gave up a good business so that he could be with Schaaf all of the time," declared Mr. Boston. "He cooks all of his meals and directs his every move in life.

"Frank Shannon, manager of Henry Lamar, is another pilot who spent years in bringing a youngster to the front. Lamar made his big effort when he clashed with Jim Maloney only to get knocked out.

"For five years Jack Kearns has been nursing Napoleon Dorval along in the hope that this heavyweight would eventually become a champion. Dorval's greatest feat was a victory over Otto Von Porat in Chicago and the conquest of Benny Touchstone in New York.

"BILLY DUFFY, one of Dempsey's seconds in all of his recent bouts, has a school of fighters at Gus Wilson's camp at Orangeburg. If one of them comes through properly, Duffy will be repaid for his efforts.

"WALK MILLER, manager of the late Tiger Flowers, has 25 to 30 boxers in training on a farm 100 miles outside of New York city."

GENE MAY NOT WED TILL NEW CHAMP WINS

to that yet. It shall be done as quietly as possible."

Miss Laude denied she would soon join Tunney in Europe for a wedding in Paris.

The ex-champion's fiancee said she knew nothing of Tunney's activities abroad. Gene has not written her, she said, since he sailed two weeks ago.

"Since Mr. Tunney has scarcely been gone long enough for me to receive a letter here," she said. "I have no idea what is going on over there. We have received several cable messages from him, but they are always addressed to all at home. I certainly am anxiously awaiting a letter."

Miss Lauder is wearing an engagement ring which she described as "charming." The ring consists of a square-cut diamond, about a half inch in diameter, in a Lacy platinum setting, inlaid with smaller diamonds. The circlet of the ring is also of platinum, set with smaller stones.

Tunney to Visit Inn Where John L. Trained

London, Sept. 1 (AP)—Gene Tunney set off by automobile towards Oxford this morning, expecting to see the university city and spend the rest of the day in the country.

He intended to have luncheon at a roadside inn and possibly see the Star and Garter Inn at Windsor, where John L. Sullivan trained many years ago. He planned to have supper on the way back to London.

Tunney Eager to Visit Famous Halls of Oxford

London, Sept. 1 (INS)—Gene Tunney expects to spend a quiet day today. He planned to tour Oxford in motor car visiting interesting places and setting up at Maidenhead tonight, where he will dine with friends.

He will stay overnight at Maidenhead and return here tomorrow morning. On his tour today the former heavyweight champion may go to Oxford University to visit the various halls of learning.

He has been looking forward eagerly to seeing at first hand this home of culture. Friends say he is expected anxious to go through the famous Bodleian library.

[illegible] JOHNNY CURCIO of Providence was awarded the decision over Laddie Lee of Somerville in eight round semi-final. It was a hard, close fight, and in the opinion of this writer Lee had the margin.

Each boxer scored a knockdown. Curcio in the first round at Lee in the seventh.

Jackie Donahue, [illegible] South Boston featherweight, knocked out Johnny (Kid) Adams of Lawrence in six rounds. Donahue floored Adams to the canvas in the third frame. From then on Donahue had things his own way. The sixth round witnessed the end of Adams. Donahue appears to be all set to take a shot at Sammy Fuller's New England featherweight champion title.

Farley Parker of the [illegible] End won from Eddie Thomas of Roxbury, in four rounds, with Leo Harrington of South Boston, stopped Dave Murray of Roxbury, in three frames.

Young Granberg of Worcester, followed Eddie Davis of the South End, in two rounds.

SERMONS SET FOR LABOR DAY

Congregation of Beth Hamedrash Hagodol

One of the great events in the history of the Congregation Beth Hamedrash Hagodol will take place next Wednesday evening at 8 p. m. when a public reception will be held at the synagogue to receive and install the new spiritual leader, Rabbi William Braslo, graduate of Yeshiva College and New York College, University of Philosophy. He will be installed Wednesday evening when a banquet will be given in his honor. He will be met at the South Station at 1 p. m. Tuesday, by one of the largest gatherings of Jewish leaders in Boston, including Louis H. Seligsberg, president; Sender Burnstein, vice-president; Samuel Rosenberg, recording secretary; Abraham Kanter, L. H. Barnett, A. Sacks, S. Pearlman, and the entire board of directors of the synagogue. Following the banquet there will be a musical program under the direction of Carl Newman.

His Eminence, the Cardinal, officiated at the laying of the corner stone of the new Church of Our Lady, Star of the Sea, in the picturesque old harbor town of Marblehead on Sunday afternoon last.

Though the weather was most unfavorable, rain falling in torrents during the ceremony, a large number of parishioners of the parish, with their friends and interested persons, attended the exercises, which marked a memorable day for the parish.

The impressive ceremonies which mared this occasion in the history of the seashore parish held the deep attention of those present. They included a procession to the site, with the escorting of His Eminence to the platform, a warm welcome to him, a sermon, a brief address by His Eminence, musical numbers, and the ceremony of the laying of the cornerstone.

The Unitarian ministers' institute will be held in Deerfield, Mass., beginning next Monday and lasting for three days, Sept. 5. These meetings are for the purpose of furnishing fellowship and inspiration. The institute is a convention for Unitarian leaders. It has had a long history of helpful service in strengthening for leadership. The program this year is in the hands of those who have had long experience in such matters.

Labor Day Message

Prepared by the Commission on the Church and Social Service of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Dreams of a better social order can no longer be dismissed as the impracticable objectives of sentimentalists. Science appears upon the scene as the handmaid of religion. For science has already accomplished the impossible. By its knowledge of law it has subdued the natural order to the will of man. Man flies, he speaks through space, he draws electric power from the sky. By the aid of science we now do those things which previous generations put down as the foolish dreams of impractical men. There is every reason to believe that science can now adopt social ideals as specifications of a great task to be accomplished for humanity and proceed by the scientific method to assist in evolving a new industrial order which shall be increasingly characterized by righteousness and peace.

A score of years ago the churches of this country expressed the ideals of religion in their bearing on social and industrial relations. The abolition of child labor; protective regulations for women in industry; the abatement and prevention of poverty; the protection of the worker from dangerous machinery and occupational diseases and the hardship of enforced unemployment; suitable provision for old age; the right of employes and employers alike to organize; adequate means of arbitration and conciliation in industrial disputes; the gradual and reasonable reduction of hours of labor to the lowest practicable point; a living wage as a minimum in every industry and the highest wage that each industry can afford; a new emphasis upon the application of Christian principles to the acquisition and use of property; and the most equitable division of the product of industry that can ultimately be devised—these are the industrial ideals for which the churches stand.

Certain phases of the industrial problem press for immediate attention. The past year has seen a serious condition of unemployment. The situation has been not less but more challenging because of a condition of prosperity for many while a very large number of men were out of work. The Department of Labor has estimated that there were nearly 2,000,000 fewer persons employed in January of this year than in January, 1925. Since the so-called normal unemployment is not less than 1,000,000, this government estimate means that at least 3,000,000 workers must have been unemployed during the past winter. Such a condition is economically unsound and intolerable from the point of view of Christian brotherhood. Let the forces of religion vigorously renew their efforts so to inspire our technicians, and so to impress upon industrial leaders and when necessary upon government the demand for solutions for unemployment, that wise and effective measures may be worked out to remove this evil from our economic life.

The coincidence of unemployment and the rapidly advancing productive power of the nation due to the increased use of machinery, new power resources, scientific management, and the growing efficiency of labor suggest the possibility of a further shortening of hours and of a five-day-week in certain industries. Churches and social agencies must be prepared to do their part in providing for the increasing leisure time for all as hours of work are shortened. We have learned to view with confidence the ability of the workers, if opportunities are provided, to make as good use of their leisure time as any other social group.

It is of basic importance in the approach, not only to these problems of hours and unemployment, but to all matters which touch intimately the lives of the workers, that the right of collective bargaining shall be recognized as fundamental. Representation of all the people concerned in a common undertaking, which is the American principle of government, is the only sound and scientific method of adjusting labor relations and of working out permanent solutions of industrial problems. We view with satisfaction the forward-looking offers of the American Federation of Labor and other unions to co-operate with management in an effort to eliminate waste from industry, to increase production and to promote efficiency in the service of the public. An engineering approach to industrial problems by the labor unions in practical co-operation with management holds a significant promise of orderly and constructive progress.

It must not be forgotten that the churches are also employers of labor and that as such they are under the same moral obligations as other employers to operate on Christian principles in their relations with those whom they employ. Indeed, they are under greater obligations because of the position they assume as teachers of ethics and religion.

Some labor leaders have not been interested in the liberal pronouncements of the churches because of evasions by the churches themselves of the practical issues involved. A prominent church official has said: "I am about ready to ask my communion either to practice some of its liberal pronouncements or to repeal them."

We, therefore, urge both the religious and secular forces of the nation to renew their faith in the social ideals of the churches as practicable objectives for American life. We suggest to all concerned in industry that they approach the solution of labor problems in a [illegible] and co-operative spirit, assured of the possibility of [illegible] able social progress. We call upon [illegible] and the public to move forward with [illegible] and intelligence into a new and better day.

What Thinks He?

This workman sits and thinks and thinks—or does he think? He sees the future man-to-be—or does he see? He feels the thrill of strength which men should feel when power is in their hands—but does he thrill and feel his power? By all his thinking will he reach the truth and know that mind and spirit, soul beneath the brawn, must dominate the man and all the world? Let us believe that when he rises from his revery and returns to mill or mine he will have solved the mysteries of life with such clear vision that he can tell his plodding friends.

Rally Sunday Coming

Churches, Sunday schools, ministers and lay people of all ages are combining this year in Greater Boston to move the entire population into church on October 7. The idea in the back of the minds of those most interested is that it can do no citizen any harm to start the season of 1928-29 by attending some service of worship. Of course the hope is always present that once the year is started right, the rest will come easier. The possibility of everyone interested in the slightest degree taking the slip printed below and making a cross on it, and then sending it to his minister or priest, has appealed to churchmen.

Pledge cards are now ready and they may be secured at the offices of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, 1 Park st. or Mr. Grace P. Reed, associate secretary.

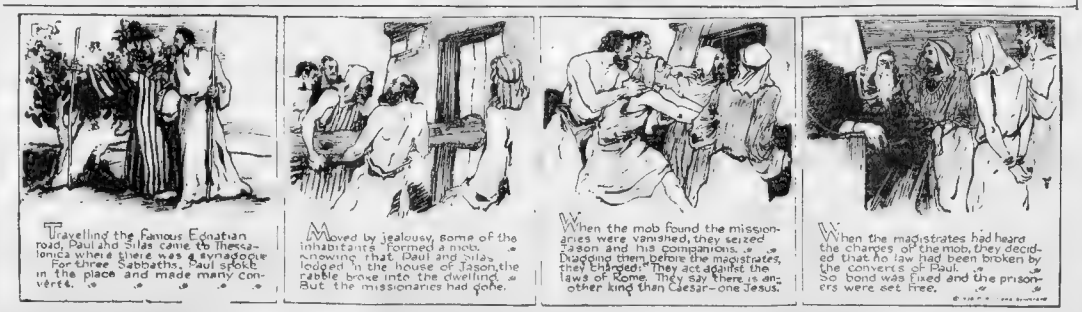
PAUL IN THESSALONICA—International Sunday School Lesson



Travelling the famous Egnatian road, Paul and Silas came to Thessalonica where there was a synagogue. For three Sabbaths, Paul spoke in the place and made many converts.

Moved by jealousy, some of the inhabitants formed a mob, knowing that Paul and Silas lodged in the house of Jason, the rabble broke into the dwelling. But the missionaries had gone.

When the mob found the missionaries were vanished, they seized Jason and his companions, dragging them before the magistrates, they charged: "They act against the laws of Rome. They say there is another king than Caesar—one Jesus.

When the magistrates had heard the charges of the mob, they decided that no law had been broken by the converts of Paul. So bond was fixed and the prisoners were set free.

Dancing Daughters

Story of Modern Marriages and Husband Hunters

CHAPTER 6.

DIANA glanced at a funny little clock, fashioned like a church tower gone tipsy, and speeded her dressing. Mother and Dad were dining out and she had had a tray in her room; now she jumped up, trailing draperies of red and green triangles and 20 little pair of winged mules danced in the mirrors as she skipped toward the bed where Suzette, whom Mother loaned her sometimes, had laid out her clothes.

A simple process, dressing. Pulling up stockings of such nude fullness that her legs seemed quite bare else; they were only thrusting would feel long tiny gilt slippers with heels like stilts; sliding dexterously into a straight little bodice which hung from narrow shoulder straps and ended in a pair of tiny scissors the knees—cloth of gold, as was and regu red no under garments. Then she fastened on a yellow skirt all flutes and flounces that ended in ruffles with a great bunch of yellow roses at the side. A dab of powder which 20 Diana dabbing their noses mocked her in the mirror, an adoring pause before the red bow left them a sweep of red and a vase of orange velvet and she was gone as her 20 reflections, to whom every detail of her dress and her own dazzling charm, flitted away on pursuits of their own.

Twinkling down the hall she paused to listen a moment before pausing a laughing bit of tattoo on a panel with her knuckles. Not like her own, the room she entered. Millicent Rand loved old rose and dull blue and French furniture, surrounding herself with artistic effects but conventional ones. Now she was seated at her dressing table, a mature version of her daughter, rather, a bit less vivacious but so youthful that the two might have been sisters.

Diana, romping in blithely as on some happy breeze, would have kissed the smooth cheek turned her way had not Suzette, mending a bit of torn lace at the back of the older woman's gown, made a warning gesture with her needle.

So the girl touched her hand to her lips and blew a butterfly kiss while Millicent said, "How lovely you are!"

"Is it a proposal?" she demanded.

She pulled on stockings of nude flimsiness.

Diana and Her Dad Drink Their Mysterious Toast Together

"How lovely YOU are, darling!"

They beamed at each other and Diana began to pick at the table, sniffing the perfumes, trying a dish of each, finally reading the bill of fare in silver on a black card propped up in a vase.

"Chose d'amour," she mused and read: "Kiss of love!" She pouted and read drained her mouth of an orange eyes brimmed. "Ah—poor dad!"

This time both mother and daughter, and Millicent, freed now of the maid's restraining eye, turned the girl about, smoothing back a dark curl, running a ladder puff over the slim, young back.

They kissed each other and Diana sped away; tripped down the stairs and into the library. There she found her father, surrounded by Noddy and Teddy and Norman Greer, the four in the act of raising cocktails to their lips.

"Hey!" she called from the door. "Wait a minute!"

"Better hurry, Princess! Well, then—" Seymour Rand filled another glass and Diana perched upon the side of his chair, flinging an arm about his neck and holding her glass high.

"Daddy—one toast!" A bit of a rifle they had repeated many times together this was; their manner became ceremonious, almost solemn, as she proposed the toast: "To myself—I have to live with myself until I die—so may I always like—myself!"

They drank and Norman, grinning, declared it to be the most conceited toast that ever he had heard. "Wait till you're married, Di. You won't be so fresh then!"

The girl cocked a whimsical eye at his good-natured disapproval and shook her head. "Is it a proposal?" she demanded. "Oh, Dad—this is no sudden thing!"

She put her face on her father's broad shoulder and he winked at the group circling. "That's your step, young fellow. She'll want you to live alone before you know what's happened."

Stands Watching; Looking With Love, Admiration and Tenderness

"I'll risk that, sir."

"It is not. She's set in her ways. If I were you—" He made a gesture of final caution and Diana, leaning, brushed his cheek with a mouth. But the two words passed between them were heard, altered pulses, and the girl was conscious of a sudden tension in the air. And I want" her look returned.

But now Noddy and Teddy were edging [illegible] each eyed almost [illegible] marrying, you [illegible] well—you [illegible] us?"

During this several them back [illegible] I was sorry of you would [illegible] I could tell you [illegible] Come, boss—time [illegible]

So closed her father completely [illegible] car and she [illegible] you get [illegible] bring I could home, Dad—you hear?"

"Wouldn't disobey you for worlds Princess. But do try to look in for breakfast, my dear. Goodby—"

Goodbys all in chorus, Diana's hand backward like bright bubbles, hanging in the air a moment to scintillate and break in soni[illegible] [illegible] from the room, more precious but no less carefree. A whirl, a flash of gold and orange, a pattering of feet—the outer door banged—she was gone, tiking a certain something with her, a quaint exuberance like rare wine to Seymour and [illegible]

He stood there looking at the place where she had been, in his eyes the love and tenderness and admiration which had been in the face of Diana's mother a little time before.

Americans not afraid to wander off a few thousand miles to compete in world affairs are needed.

This country is an empire, a big one, and going to be bigger. It needs the sort of men that Britain calls "imperially minded."

Representatives of Russia's government are in America, prepared to spend $40,000,000 for automobile trucks, tractors and other farm machines.

That should soften our government, which in silly, provincial fashion, invites all nations EXCEPT Russia, to sign the peace pact.

Our diplomacy reflects the angry disappointment of foolish bankers that bought Russian bonds, and lost their money. They bought from the Czar and feeble Kerensky, and most of the money stayed HERE to pay American bills.

Modern Russia says: "We don't pay the Czar's debts," just as we should have said 150 years ago: "We don't pay King George's debts."

Greedy, foolish buyers of worthless bonds should not prevent sensible American business men doing business with Russia, or cause Uncle Sam to turn against an old friend. Russian buying here will make up many times over the foolish bankers losses on Russian bonds.

As for Russia's k'nd of government, that is not our business. The British wisely say, "We do business with cannibals."

Eighty years ago Frances E. Willard, noble worker [illegible] temperance, planted two chestnut trees, at Evanston, Ill., [illegible] "as these trees grow and spread their branches, so the cause of temperance shall grow and spread throughout the world."

Both trees are dying, and the W. C. T. U. has sent for tree surgeons to save them, that they may, in November, post on the trees election returns, "as state after state repudiates the candidate who has declared himself a wet."

If these trees have been "watered" with bootleg, why [illegible], as cynics suggest, the tree surgeons will work in vain.

The R. E. Jacks ranch, of San Luis Obispo county, one of the largest in California, will replace many cowboys with one airplane.

The boss cowboy will ride through the air, not far up, supervising herds and spying out fence breaks.

Flying becomes more useful every day, and releasing cowboys from dull, not at all romantic work, is a blessing.

New Jersey passes sensible, uniform traffic laws. Open country speed is increased from 20 to 40 miles an hour. Thirty miles is allowed in regulated city traffic. And, most important, foot traffic must obey traffic signals and cross streets at corners. This rule, old in California, should be adopted everywhere.

CHURCH COUNCIL HAS LABOR DAY MESSAGE

In a special Labor Sunday message, which will be widely read and commented upon tomorrow in pulpits throughout the country, the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America emphasizes unemployment as a major concern for the religious forces. The statement declares that "A condition of necessity for many, while a great number of men are out of work, is economically unsound and intolerable."

ONCE-OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

YOU may not agree to the statement that the best friends you have are those who frequently disagree with you.

It is pleasing to your vanity and to your self-valuation if your good friends always agree with you.

But if your choice friends flatter you by agreeing with you they must often see faults in you which they forgive.

Forever, those less interested in you would not tolerate everything.

You have faults and you know you have them.

Certainly you don't permit yourself to think you are perfect or nearly so.

But if your friends don't occasionally tell you how to improve along some certain line you are going to be less pleasing as time goes on.

Perhaps your friends know your penchant for approval and so they flatter you a lot but it is not so kind.

One does not like to be censured often by friends but truthfulness is a virtue, display it before those who flatter rather than the critical friend.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

PRETTY soon it will take as many ushers to get a man into the church for his wedding as it does pall-bearers to get him out after his funeral.

After a few years of marriage, it is sort of comforting to see a man's hat hanging on the rack, even though his mind may be miles away, pursuing a golf ball, an idea, or an other woman.

It takes all the edge off a man's enthusiasm to have a woman insist on being the sun of his existence, when all he wanted was a cute little satellite to revolve around him.

A man does not feel that he is actually entangled, these days, until the "other woman" raises a row when he spends an occasional evening with his wife.

Most husbands are like a gun—never at hand when you need them or want them; but somehow, it's a comfort to feel that you've GOT them around the house.

A mother feels flattered and at most set up, these days, if her daughter's fiancé is well-off, treats her like a mental and social equal.

"Legs are not immortal," according to the latest legal decision. Alas, no! They have lost all their lustre. They are all right to walk on or dance with; but as an eyecharmer, they are no more startling than nose or galoshes.

There are a few ideally happy marriages and a few unhappy ones, but most carriages are merely uncomfortable.

About the only thing on which some modern couples ever seem to be able to agree, is the "collusion."

3-MINUTE JOURNEYS

NUMBER Ten Downing st., London, official residence of the Prime Minister of England, the seat whence the British Empire is ruled. Obviously it should be a tall, stately mansion of marble and mahogany in a noble avenue.

Actually, it is a rather dull and dingy three-storied, red brick house, in one of London's tiniest and most insignificant streets.

Downing st. is a narrow blind-alley turning off Whitehall, a few hundred yards long and ending in a row of iron railings. Number Ten is the first house on the right, flat fronted, with two rows of plain, oblong windows, an unpretentious door and four railings leading it off from the narrow sidewalk.

A tourist in London "dabbles" his pedometer on guard in the cold indication of the impertinence, if we accept the diagnosis on the spot.

It was in 1682 that Sir George Downing, secretary to the treasury of "The Merry Monarch," Charles II, built what is now the focal point of Britain's power. In 1731, No. 10 was offered to Sir Robert Walpole as a personal present by King George II.

Walpole, however, persuaded the King to present the house as a residence in perpetuity to the holder of the office of First Lord of the Treasury.

As this position is always held by the Prime Minister this gift practically carrying no salary) the old house has come to be considered the Premier's official residence.

But what a disappointment it is to tourists!

FIFTY BILLION IN BIGGEST INDUSTRY

A $50,000,000 chemical industry, the largest enterprise in the nation, of which sunlight, water and carbon dioxide are the principal raw materials, is discussed by Dr. C. A. Browne, research chief of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The products are essential, grains, fruits, vegetables, cotton, sugar, poultry, milk, wool, hides.

Besides showing how agriculture is a chemical industry, and what chemistry has done for it, he says there is need for a wider application of chemistry to agriculture to make it prosper.

Not long ago Doctor Browne circulated a questionnaire among agricultural chemists asking their opinions as to the 12 most important contributions which chemical research has made to the prosperity of the Nation. There was substantial agreement on the development of accurate methods for analysis of agricultural products, accurate studies of the value of various foods for specific purposes in maintaining health and growth, studies of the chemical composition, properties, and nutritive values of various crops as guides to proper feeding and diet; and the experimental means to correct the sterility of acid soils.

Other developments, highly regarded by the chemists, were the use of fertilizers for farm crops; studies of vitamins, reclamation of alkali soils; development of the cane and beet-sugar industries; work on utilization of wastes and by-products of agriculture, and insecticides and fungicides, serums, etc., and the investigations of the chemistry of soils.

To these accomplishments Dr. Browne adds special mention of the service chemists render to the farmer in protecting him from "seductive schemes designed to cheat him."

At present the most active studies of agricultural chemical research in the United States is that of vitamins. One of the most important immediate problems of agricultural chemistry in Doctor Browne's opinion, is the prevention of soil erosion. The chemist can aid in maintenance of a reserve of organic matter in the soil, which in turn holds water and checks erosion.

Farmers will save millions of dollars through the development of concentrated fertilizers which obviate expense for hauling and for transportation of "filler" for fertilizers.

Agricultural chemists are also assisting the farmer to prolong the life of many articles he buys, such as leather, wood, cement, and metals used in tools, houses, buildings, and utensils, and are teaching him to prevent the spoilage of goods he offers for sale.

BOSTON RETAIL TRADE IS "SEASONABLY QUIET"

R. G. Dun & Co., Weekly Trade Review in this week's home says retail garding trade conditions in Boston: "Retail trade is seasonably quiet, but there are signs of an improvement in manufacturing and distribution. There is more interest in prints, sheetings and ginghams, but the total volume of business in cotton goods is not large and the mills are obliged to curtail.

"The mills are showing some interest in the fine wools, but sales in all lines are moderate.

"Orders for current shipment are coming into the shoe manufacturers in fair volume, but orders for late delivery are few. The leather market is improving.

"Permits applied for in 55 Massachusetts towns and cities amounted to $13,926,000 for the month of July, which was 9 per cent less than the number for July, 1927.

"Labor was fairly well employed during July, and increases were reported in the boot and shoe cutting, particularly Brockton."

Frank H. Meloon Financial Editor of the Boston Evening American, will resume his daily column and regular investment service upon his return from vacation. B. C. Forbes, also on vacation, will resume his column after Labor Day.

These Are Gala Days at "Rio Vista" on the Concord River

Andrew J. "BOSSY" GILLIS IN PERSON

COME and HEAR!

Newburyport's Fighting "Bad Boy," Good Mayor Unburden His Chest in a Public Talk at

RIO VISTA, LABOR DAY—COME EARLY

Listen to the "Bad Boy" who "rode the rods" across the continent in 8 days as "blind baggage."

See the "Bachelor" with a leaning toward "red heads," in action.

Let him entertain you with a "lingo" all his own, as he propounds his views on his presidential candidate, AL SMITH.

"Bossy" in person — not a picture. The man who put Newburyport on the map.

Mayor Walker's pal in his $35 suit will hold nothing back. Plenty of ACTION — FIRE — PEP — SPEED.

Let him tell you his idea of Rio Vista. Hear his fearless, vitriolic ideas about his numerous "political pickles."

"Andrew J." says, "Give the taxpayers their money's worth." "Buy at Rio Vista, it's Jake." Hear him in his own inimitable way as he treats the popular topics of the day.

Special Price Reductions

A limited number of $100 LOTS for these days only

$85 2500 Square Feet

$17.50 First Payment

$2.50 A Month

Rio Vista, nestling on the banks of the shimmering Concord River, with over a mile of waterfront, offers every inducement to the lovers of the great out doors.

Property reservations have been made for Restaurant, Dance Hall, Boat Livery, Filling Station, Bathing Beaches, Floats and Community Club House.

There are 2500 lots to choose from, many worth $1000 each and prices vary all the way.

A limited number of $100 lots will be sold Sunday and Labor Day at the low price of $85, $17.50 down and $2.50 monthly. These lots all contain 2500 sq. ft.

250 Acres of this ideal land have been divided into generous lots—streets have been cut—ground clearing accomplished and arrangements made for immediate building.

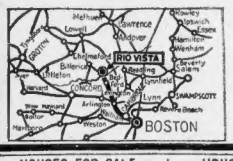
Rio Vista is only 22 miles from Boston on perfect roads —Leave Boston by any main road to Arlington Centre, then Massachusetts Ave. to Lexington Square; bear right at Minute Man statue on Bedford Road. Follow this boulevard to Bedford; thru Bedford Sq., take right hand road marked Lowell; at next fork take road straight thru marked Chelmsford and White Mountains. Rio Vista is just across the new Concrete Bridge over the Concord River—3 miles from Bedford.

BAND CONCERT

Sunday, Sept. 2nd

Free Band Concert—Everyone invited—Good music—lively tunes. Bring your lunch—Bring your neighbors—View the tranquil waters of the Concord River winding its lazy way past the picnic grove and thru the heavy wooded banks of Rio Vista.

Rio Vista on the Concord River



Three Miles From Bedford, on Route 4, in the Town of Billerica

Now Is the time to make your choice of lots. Even if you don't build, the opportunity to take a profit is splendid at this offering. You will realize that, once you see what we have done here and the natural advantages of this remarkable location.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE ☆ ☆ BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN ☆ ☆ BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 1, 1928

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure, the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

We Build a Tunnel

But We CAN'T Operate It—Why Not?

There is nothing better in the way of urban rapid transit in the United States than the Cambridge-Boston tunnel, further extended today by the opening of Ashmont Station in Peabody Square.

The six-mile Dorchester extension, with stations at Columbia, Savin Hill, Fields Corner, Shawmut and Ashmont, represents an investment by the City of Boston of $10,000,000.

The city furnished men and equipment, using the money of the people. The engineers were staff men of the Boston Commission.

We don't like to stir up jealousy, but we wish every resident of Greater Boston who uses the lines of the Elevated system to get to and from his work would take the earliest opportunity to see what the Transit Commission has done for real estate and the public in a fortunate section of Dorchester.

A ride from Andrew Square to Ashmont will prompt many questions. Why not something of this sort for Jamaica Plain and West Roxbury? How long must Medford, Malden, Reading, and other communities on the north side of town, wait for like advantages?

Finally, if a Boston transit board can build a line like this with the money of the people, build it well, build it economically and without the hint of scandal, why could not the same or some other board OPERATE the traction system?

One of these days the residents of Greater Boston will be compelled to take up the traction question IN EARNEST.

Gerry Brown

An Honest Man and True

Elbridge Gerry Brown, labor editor, whose funeral is taking place this afternoon in Brockton, was NOT a practical politician.

The practical politician will take an active part in no movement unless he can see at least the chance of success; all that Gerry Brown ever wanted to know was that the cause DESERVED success.

The book of his life is closed in his 79th year. He had been "on the losing end" of political contests more often than any other worker of his generation. Politicians of the go-getter type, hard-headed men of affairs, the practical-minded generally, will say he was a failure.

WAS he a failure?

He gave every minute of a useful life, every beat of an unselfish heart, to the effort to make the world a better place for the average man and the average man's wife and children.

Some of the best of his ideas were taken up by politicians of the practical school, polished off, tapered down and, their authorship forgotten, enacted into law.

Gerry Brown was true to himself, false to no other man. He made friends and he held them fast. The community, richer for having known him, is made poorer by his passing.

Real Farm Relief

Labor-Saving Machinery

For the last fifty years the farmer's best friend has been the American inventive genius that has given him labor-saving machinery.

Further "farm relief" in this direction is in process. The Department of Agriculture reports that this year the wheat of whole counties in Kansas will be handled by the new combine harvester. It moves across the field cutting and threshing the wheat in one operation.

The combine enables two men to harvest from four to five hundred acres of grain in fifteen days of actual work. It reduces the amount of labor for harvesting 400 acres from 120 days of man labor to 30 days.

He Built a Good Road

There Are No Grade Crossings

WILLIAM K. VANDERBILT AND MRS W. K. VANDERBILT. THIS MAN SET AN EXAMPLE IN ROAD BUILDING.

W. K. Vanderbilt, whose picture you see, and whose people for many years have been railroad builders and owners, built one road on Long Island, N. Y., that sets an example to the rest of the country.

It runs from Lake Ronkonkoma, almost fifty miles, to the new, magnificent Nassa Boulevard, partly constructed, east and west, on Long Island.

The main thing about the Vanderbilt Parkway, built at great expense through the heart of Long Island, is the fact, that in all of the fifty miles of its length there IS NOT ONE SINGLE GR[illegible]OSSING.

That wa[illegible]d road goes OVER or UNDER every road that cro[illegible]nd the motorist, using it, has nothing to think about [illegible]ther drivers.

Next Stop, Labor Day

By FRANKLIN COLLIER

DO NOT TALK BACK TO THE MOTORMAN
THE POOR MOTORMAN CANNOT TAKE LABOR DAY OFF. HE HAS TO PILOT PASSENGERS THROUGH TRAFFIC-RIDDEN STREETS. BUT AT LEAST, HE GETS PAID FOR IT.
BUT THIS POOR MISGUIDED PALOOKA PUTS IN THE WHOLE DAY, ALONG WITH MILLIONS OF OTHERS, IN A NIAGARA OF TRAFFIC AND THINKS HE IS HAVING A REAL HOLIDAY.
IF THIS CITIZEN HAD TO DO THIS HE WOULD ORATE THUSLY—
"BUNLIEVE ME! IF THE BOSS THINKS HE IS GOING TO MAKE ME DO THIS ON MY DAY OFF HE'S GOT ANOTHER THINK COMING! A FELLOW SHOULD HAVE A DAY WHEN HE CAN REST UP, NOW AND AGAIN. I'M GOING TO QUIT THE JOB!"
THIS IS LABOR DAY, WHEN WE GLORIFY THE WORKING MAN IN THE SQUARE CAP.
HOW ABOUT THE WORKING WOMAN? WHY DOESN'T SHE GET SOME CONSIDERATION?
WHAT DOES SHE DO ON LABOR DAY? THE SAME THING SHE DOES THE OTHER 364 DAYS, WHILE HER HUSBAND IS OFF HAVING A GOOD TIME!
LABOR DAY ORATION
NO PICNICKING
THE DAY AFTER LABOR DAY IS LABOR DAY IN SOME PLACES
SPEAKING OF LABOR, IT BEATS ALL HOW FEW HEV T' WORK T' KEEP SICH A LARGE NUMBER WHO DON'T WANT T' WORK, IN IDLENESS

WHAT IS THE EXCUSE FOR LABOR DAY?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

LABOR DAY, no matter what it really means to most of us, was inaugurated as a sop to the laborite and a protest against the capitalistic system.

As a matter of fact there is no capitalistic party and no labor party except in our imaginations. In productivity, in which we are all engaged, capital and labor are inextricably interwoven.

The Victor Hugoesque idea of labor consisting of millions of people who have nothing or are in rags, and the capitalists as rolling in wealth and living upon the earnings of their poorer brethren has no foundation in fact. That condition existed in the Middle Ages when everything depended upon manual labor. Nowadays we are living in the age of machinery, and manual labor, as such, is becoming less and less important.

The principle thing now is for a man to know how to manage a machine or to control the great forces that work for mankind.

Electricity and steam are doing the work today of the tattered millions of yesterday, and where those powers are most used is in the United States, where we have the fewest degraded people. You will find the most of such people in China, where there is little power used.

When you go to hunt for the laborer in the United States he is pretty hard to find; that is, it is hard to find the man who has nothing but his brawn power. He usually has some money saved up in the bank or invested in the corporation. He is usually a small capitalist, in fact.

The only capitalistic class, as is pictured in the fervent labor editorials, consists of the heirs of rich men, the idlers, the gamblers and the criminals. The most of the people work in some way for a living. Most capitalists are laborers and most laborers are capitalists.

The whole trouble is that we have not learned how to get along together, how to eliminate strife and bad feeling and co-operate for the general good.

Strikes and lockouts, like wars, are simply stupid mistakes, based upon forms of mania that infect the population.

As H. G. Wells says, "A day will come when Labor Day will be a quaint and interesting anniversary, like fireworks in November in London, or beating the hounds of some old English borough."

LISTEN, WORLD!

DO AMERICAN MOTHERS MATTER?

It is never easy to have a baby. It is a difficult enough ordeal for the well-informed, intelligent woman who awaits her racked hour in the midst of beautiful and safe surroundings. But it becomes a nightmare of horror when faced by some ignorant girl in some lonely cabin or foul tenement room where there is neither knowledge nor means to bring her baby safely through the terror and torture. And that is exactly how a large percentage of American mothers face childbirth.

BABIES ARE BEING BORN IN AMERICA TODAY UNDER CONDITIONS WHICH WOULD NOT BE TOLERATED IN ANY STABLE OR STY.

Dumb girls face travail without the slightest knowledge of what that process implies. They work in cotton fields and factories until their anguish overtakes them. During pregnancy they take risks which imperil their own lives as well as the lives of their unborn babes. And when the birth hour arrives the agony caused by ignorance and neglect is so frightful that it may not be described in this column. Often the death which ensues is a blessed termination of torment.

AMERICA TODAY HAS THE HIGHEST MATERNITY DEATH RATE OF ANY CIVILIZED COUNTRY. THE REVOLTING BIRTH ORDEALS DESCRIBED BY MISS MAYO IN "MOTHER INDIA" ARE BEING DUPLICATED HOURLY IN EVERY STATE IN THE UNION.

It is not necessary to have such a death rate. We have at our disposal knowledge and money enough to make birth safe and comparatively easy for every mother, however poor or obscure she may be.

We have also a law which provides for such service to our expectant mothers. It is called the Sheppard-Towner Act. Under this law motherhood becomes a matter of federal concern. It operates under the direction of the children's bureau and has to date, cost only $1,000,000 a year to carry on. Instructions are sent to ignorant mothers, experts are provided who will answer their questions, clinics established at central points and visiting nurses employed. If this plan could be fully developed America's appalling maternity death rate would be eliminated and untold suffering prevented.

IT WOULD DO EVEN MORE THAN THAT. IT WOULD MAKE POOR AMERICAN MOTHERS FEEL THAT THEY MATTER. IT WOULD MAKE THEM REALIZE THAT YOU AND I APPRECIATE THE TREMENDOUS SERVICE THEY ARE RENDERING THIS COUNTRY AND SURELY IF THEY CAN RISK THEIR LIVES TO BUILD AMERICA, YOU AND I CAN AFFORD A FEW CENTS PER CAPITA TO HELP THEM THROUGH THEIR HOURS OF AGONY.

But you and I will not spend those few cents. We will not spend it because in November the Sheppard-Towner Act will become void—unless the new Congress takes measures to restore it. The gentlemen of the retiring Congress have decreed that this is so. These gentlemen have never had babies. To them having a baby is a quite unimportant matter. They cannot see that it justifies the expenditure of $1,000,000—or 1,000,000 cents. If it were railroad franchises—or oil lands—or water rights—or similar vital concerns to deal to the warm, throbbing congressional heart, these gentlemen might have voted for ten or a hundred million dollars of expenditure. But it was only a baby and a mother—what does it matter if one or a thousand mothers die from neglect in a big, rich country like this?

So we're going to do away with the Sheppard-Towner Act this fall—and if we do—

I personally hope—

THAT GOD LEANS OUT OF HIS HEAVEN AND GIVES US THE TRIMMING WE DESERVE.

For I am a mother. And I know what childbirth means.

Seeing America First

BY O. O. McINTYRE

Los Angeles, Sept. 1—The amazing growth of Los Angeles is due largely to its low cost of living. People can live more cheaply here perhaps than in any other first-class city. This is responsible for the large number of retired farmers and those who have a small but regular income.

For those who know how to buy, food is more than 50 per cent cheaper than it is in New York. The innumerable serve-yourself cafeterias are almost embarrassing with their modest prices. One may have everything—from potage to pecans—for less than a dollar. And there is, of course, no tipping.

There are excellent furnished apartments on the edge of the downtown district for rent from $50 to $100 a month. The same class of apartments in similar neighborhoods in New York would bring from $175 to $225 a month. Fine furnished homes are available in aristocratic areas for $250 a month. These include large front lawns, flower and vegetable gardens, garages and the services of a gardener. On Hill st. today I noticed a sign: "Three-room furnished apartment with radio—$35 a month." Dollars do not buy coal. Artificial warmth is seldom necessary and when it is gas and electric heaters suffice. The dearth of smoke and soot and general cleanliness of the city bring the laundry bill down to a minimum.

Another saving item, due to climatic conditions, is that one need not buy coal. Artificial warmth is seldom necessary and when it is gas and electric heaters suffice. The dearth of smoke and soot and general cleanliness of the city bring the laundry bill down to a minimum.

The favorite amusement is the movie and they are extremely reasonable. Ladies are admitted free to ball games. Garage storage ranges from $10 to $20 a month, but the average is $12.50 with summer rates. Bell boys, newsies and elevator operators ride in their own cars.

PERSHING SQ. is the Los Angeles Madison sq. In the very heart of the city it attracts an odd conglomeration of humanity's riff raff. There are professional hoboes, soapbox orators, beggars and jobless. Also leaders of sundry cults, lady realtors, who invite you for sightseeing bus rides; movie extras, peripatetic preachers and myriad roamers, motivated by a consuming wanderlust.

THE vogue for sawed-off stockings among Los Angeles flappers must worry hosiery manufacturers. Not every sock is a boost out here.

MAGNETIC HILL, near town, is a winding roadway presenting at one point the optical illusion of mounting upward when you are really coasting down hill. Broadway has often offered the same phenomenon.

LOS ANGELES has no sky piercing buildings. They are restricted, save for a city building that is 30 stories high, to a certain height—about 14 stories. This gives the city a uniformity agreeable to the eye.

FIRE wagons siren gigantic moans that are enough to awaken the dead. Newcomers often leap into their clothes in the middle of the night, only to learn an awning is afire a half-mile away.

LOQUACIOUS strangers drift up and talk to you as though they might have known you all their lives. The majority are those who have left their small towns to live on their savings and are touched by loneliness and the absurdity of old age. Everywhere you see the old folk on porches rocking in vanity-fluarian ease. If one has reached the rocking chair age this is the spot. Unless, of course, they prefer one of those modernistic rockers.

How to Stop Bootlegging

Let Bootleggers "Sell" Their Customers

Government agents in Philadelphia, seizing $75,000 worth of wines, etc., also secured a list of "distinguished" customers of the bootleggers.

If the Government really wanted to stop bootlegging, it could do so simply enough.

Make it a felony to buy alcoholic liquor from a bootlegger, with a fine and imprisonment, always BOTH, for the bootlegger's customers; and let half the fine go to the informer, with immunity to the informing bootlegger.

That would soon kill bootlegging. For every bootleg customer would be at the blackmailing mercy of his bootlegger. In preference to enduring that situation, the customer would drink water.

The bootleggers, comparatively few, can bribe those that interfere with them. The customers number millions. Frighten THEM, and you would stop the trade.

It WON'T be done, of course, because there is no real intention to stop the trade.

Psychic Deafness

A New Kind

Men and women, afflicted with deafness, have been able to hear after flying at a great height.

"Stunt flying" is supposed to make the cure more efficacious.

Scientists investigating the alleged cures are inclined to doubt their genuineness. There is, however, a type of deafness, exceedingly rare, called "psychic deafness," in which the subconscious mind refuses to hear.

A young girl, distressed by hearing her father and mother constantly quarreling, is said to have developed such deafness.

Flight at a great height, with an occasional downward swoop, may have a good effect. But surgeons ought to be able to do more for ordinary deafness than any stunt flight could do.
